VOL. 32 No. 44 | Lancaster Farming, Saturday, September 5, 1987 | Four Sections | $8.50 Per Year

The couples named to Cooperative leadership are Charles and Becky Castle; Bill and Linda Compton; Stan and Janice Burkholder; Gordon and Carole Hoover; Dan and Laureen Naylor and David and Barbara Kehr.

Couples Named To Cooperative Leadership

DANVILLE (Luzerne Co.)—Five Pennsylvania couples were named to leadership positions for the 1988 PAFC Young Cooperative Leaders Conference at the 14th annual conference held here recently.

Dan and Laureen Naylor, Factoryville, were selected from the pool of four 1987 region leaders to serve as conference hosts and chair for the 1988 conference, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives.

PAFC Region Leaders for 1988 include the following: Northern Region, Charles and Becky Castle, sponsored by Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative; South Central Region, Stan and Janice Burkholder, Chambersburg, sponsored by York Farm Credit; Southeast Region, Gordon and Carole Hoover, Gap, sponsored by Atlantic Dairy Cooperative; and Western Region, Bill and Linda Compton, Clarksburg, sponsored by Coba-Select Sires.

In addition, David and Barbara Kehr, Littlestown, are the Young Cooperative Leaders representatives on the 1987-88 PAFC Board of Directors. They served as 1987 Conference hosts.

The annual conference focuses on agricultural cooperatives and today's economic climate as well as how cooperatives function. It is the only one of several educational efforts sponsored by the trade association. The 1988 Conference will be held in conjunction with the National Institute on Cooperative Education in Rochester, NY, July 26-29.

The Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives is a trade association representing about 40 agricultural and rural cooperatives that contribute more than $3 billion to the economy of the Commonwealth each year.

Kirkland Gives 1987 Dairy Outlook

BY JACK J. KIRKLAND
Assistant Professor,
Ag Economics, PSU

Editor's Note:

Jack J. Kirkland, Assistant Professor of Ag Economics and Rural Sociology, Penn State University here discusses the dairy outlook for the remainder of 1987 for the US, the Northwest and Pennsylvania.

Kirkland looks at the number of milk cows, milk production and how they have been affected by the Dairy Termination program and the impact of the national dairy situation, as well as the effects of local conditions, on milk prices received by Pennsylvania dairy farmers. The forecasts of the number of cows, production per cow, and milk production in the U.S. as well as CCC purchases and the M-W milk price are given, for 1987. In addition, the number of cows, production per cow and total milk production for 1987 is given for the Northeast as well as the number of cows, production per cow, total milk production, and milk prices in Pennsylvania.

OUTLOOK FOR 1987

Number of Cows, Production per Cow, and Milk Production

The DTP program will continue to have a significant impact on the number of cows and milk production throughout the last half of 1987. Although the incentive for expansion is still favorable with relatively high milk-feed ratios that will continue throughout the year, it has decreased from that in the early 1980's. The continued sales of cows by farmers participating in the DTP should continue to more than offset any expansion. As a result, the number of cows in the U.S. should be from 3% to 4% lower than 1986 levels. The number of cows in the Northeast is expected to be from 1% to 2% lower than in 1986. Pennsylvania cow numbers are expected to decline from 0.5% to 1% in 1987.

Production per cow is expected to continue increasing throughout 1987. U.S. average milk production per cow in 1987 is expected to average from 1.5% to 2.0% higher than 1986 levels. The average production per cow for the Northeast is expected to average from 1% to 1.5% higher than in 1986. Average production per cow in Pennsylvania for 1987 should range from 1.5% to 2.5% higher than in 1986.

The continued increase in production per cow will offset part of the effects of the decline in cows numbers in 1987. Total milk production in the U.S. in 1987 is expected to be between 141 to 143 billion pounds. The total milk production in the Northeast in 1987 will probably be from 1% to 3% lower than in 1986. Pennsylvania milk production will not be greatly affected by the DTP and should be from 1% to 2% higher than in 1986.

Pennfield & Weaver Issue Statement On Poultry Manure

LANCASTER — Victor F. Weaver Inc. and Pennfield Corporation, two of the county's largest poultry industries, initiated a joint study with other related government agencies to investigate ideas leading to efficient use of poultry manure.

During the past year, the Kuljian Company of Philadelphia, conducted a feasibility study proposing the use of poultry manure as a fuel source for a cogeneration project. This study was underwritten by the Lancaster County Conservation District, the Governor's Energy Council, Pennfield Corporation, and Victor F. Weaver Inc.

The Kuljian Company identified cogeneration - the process of burning the fuel, generating electricity, and utilizing the waste heat, or steam - as a potential process which could provide beneficial results.

The study evaluated five combustion methods. Of the five, the fluidized bed gasification process was identified as the best available technology. This combustion process coupled with the appropriate steam generation, electric power generation, and emission control equipment was the recommended option.

The implementation of this option, however, is not without significant questions and potential limitations. These include the following:

- The economics of utilizing poultry waste to develop energy is not as productive as anticipated.
- Electric power produced by the plant could be used by a participating company or resold to a utility company. However, any company has limited use for such energy sources, namely the amount required by its processing facilities. More energy would be generated then needed by either Pennfield or Weaver.
- A source for disposal of the ash from the combustion process needs to be obtained.
- The concern by the participating companies for unproven technology and the risk in successfully operating such a significant sized investment.

In evaluating these and many other questions, the management of the Pennfield Corporation and Victor F. Weaver Inc. are disappointed in the final results of the project which do not appear feasible. Both companies will continue to seek other alternatives which would provide balanced solutions to the overall concerns.

Ther Kuljian feasibility study has resulted in better understanding of a potential technological solution to the management of livestock waste. Weaver and Pennfield's involvement in this study demonstrates their concern for environmentally sound methods to utilize this waste. We will continue our commitment to seek ways to diminish the stress the overabundance of manure places on our county's farmland, and hope that other segments of the agriculture industry will join us in these efforts.

ACRES CORN UPDATE: Corn futures settled higher near the daily highs with a turnaround in prices on a short covering rally. Inflationary fears prompted by higher foreign currencies and precious metals markets provided further support along with continued light deliveries and ongoing export hopes. The September option gained 1-3/4 cents closing at $1.58-1/2 and December gained 2-1/2 cents, closing at $1.67-3/4. Generic certificate values have begin to increase as the midwestern harvest gets under way with buying spurred by ideas of increased PIK and roll opportunities.

ACRES SOYBEAN UPDATE: Soybeans settled from 3-1/2 to 6-1/2 cents higher in a buying spree initiated by outside market and soybean meal strength. The forecast for rain next week, and thoughts of a delayed harvest lent additional support as did talk of favorable export prospects. Meal prices surged on talk of possible gaps in shipments from Brazil. The November option closed up 6-1/2 cents today at $5.10-3/4.

ACRES WHEAT UPDATE: Wheat futures retained yesterday's strength and added from 1-3/4 to 2-1/4 cents to yesterday's gains. Buying today was tied to spillover strength from the precious metals and foreign currencies markets as well as inflationary fears. Advances early in the session were fueled by higher Gulf basis levels and rumors that Morocco had purchased 90,000 MT of soft red winter wheat under PL480.

ACRES HOG UPDATE: Live hogs and pork bellies settled mostly higher on spillover strength from outside markets and the cattle pits. Small gains were made on buying enthusiasm from the cattle pits in an otherwise lackluster session. Most of the pit wants to be bearish, but the discount to cash hogs has dampened selling enthusiasm and left many traders sidelined.

ACRES CATTLE UPDATE: Live cattle and feeder cattle futures closed higher this afternoon, but off session highs boosted by firmer-than-expected cash fundamentals. Some profit-taking near the close pared earlier gains. Fed cattle prices held firm today, with a major packer who had been out of the market re-entering today at steady prices. October was lefted on cash-connected unwinding of bear spreads, with buying in October and selling of February.

CME FEEDER CATTLE SETTLEMENT PRICE: 8/31/87 $76.92 up $ .12.

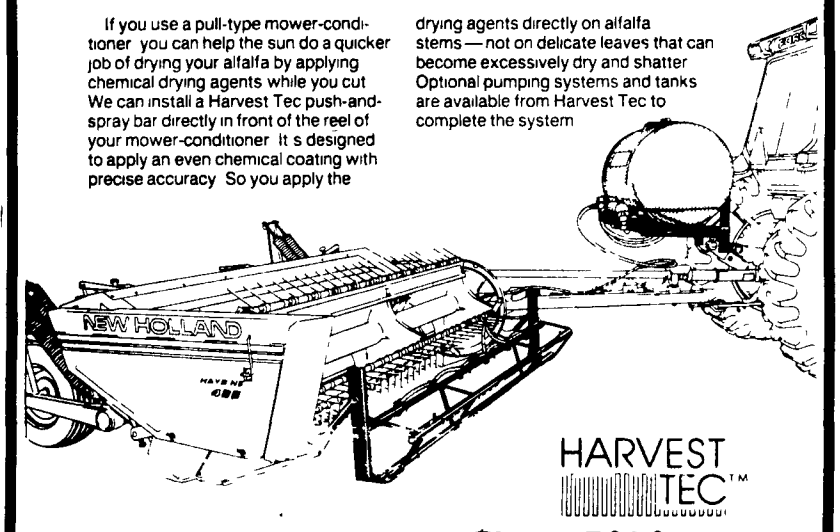
CUT HAY DRYING TIME

RAPID CURE

If you use a pull-type mower-conditioner you can help the sun do a quicker job of drying your alfalfa by applying chemical drying agents while you cut We can install a Harvest Tec push-and-spray bar directly in front of the reel of your mower-conditioner It s designed to apply an even chemical coating with precise accuracy So you apply the drying agents directly on alfalfa stems — not on delicate leaves that can become excessively dry and shatter Optional pumping systems and tanks are available from Harvest Tec to complete the system



HARVEST TEC™

Chemical Hay Conditioner

When sprayed on alfalfa hay during cutting, the RAPID CURE mixture penetrates the waxy cutin layer on the stems, increasing the rate of water evaporation from the hay.

INTRODUCTORY OFFER $5.00 Per Acre

RAPID CURE:

1. Reduces chance of rain damage
2. Improves the quality of hay
3. Gets hay off faster and allows more days for new hay crop to grow.

RAPID CURE Doesn't Cost...It Pays!!!

Both university and farm tests have proven RAPID CURE Chemical Hay Conditioner pays for itself. RAPID CURE will cost about $5.50 per acre. Applied as directed, RAPID CURE will increase hay yield by 120 to 130 lbs. per acre. This increased yield pays the cost of RAPID CURE.

ABC GROFF, INC. has a quality line of RAPID CURE applicators in stock to fit your needs.

HAVE YOU EVER STAYED AWAKE AT NIGHT...?

If you have a heat drying corn unit - sure you have. You've probably spent many nights baby-sitting the dryer.

Why loose sleep? The folks at AeroDry Grain Management Systems have developed a system to dry your corn using computer controlled fan forced air. All you have to do is set the controls and enjoy a nights sleep.

Sleep is not the only benefit you'll get. You can benefit from energy savings of up to 75%. You won't "cook" the quality out of your corn with high temperatures. You'll enjoy less shrink and higher test weights.

If you have a heat drying unit, you already know of benefits of drying and storing your own crop - now you can enjoy more benefits with AeroDry. AeroDry can be installed completely or to revise an existing bin system.

OPINION

Portrait Of A Farmer

This word portrait of a farmer has surfaced a number of times over the years. The latest time in the September issue of the Jersey Journal edited by our Adams County correspondent Ginger Myers. While the original author is unknown, we think it is fitting over this labor day weekend that you take a look at yourself again. The farmer is a unique member of the labor force in Pennsylvania. We think you will enjoy this portrait of a farmer. Author unknown.

Farmers are found in fields plowing up, seeding down, returning from, planting to, fertilizing with, spraying for and harvesting if. Wives help them, little boys follow them, the Agriculture Department confuses them, city relatives visit them, salesmen detain them, meals wait for them, weather can delay them, but it takes Heaven to stop them.

When your car stalls along the way, a farmer is considerate, courteous, inexpensive road service. When a farmer's wife suggests he buy a new suit, he can quote from memory every expense involved in operating the farm last year plus the added expense he is certain will crop up this year. Or else he assumes the role of the indignant shopper, impressing upon everyone within earshot the pounds of milk he must produce in order to pay for a suit at today's prices.

A farmer is a paradox — he is "overalled" executive with his home his office; a scientist using fertilizer attachments; a purchasing agent in an old straw hat; a personnel director with grease under his fingernails; a dietician with a passion for alfalfa, animals and antibiotics; a production expert faced with a surplus; and a manager battling a price-cost squeeze. He manages more capital than most of the businessmen in town.

He likes sunshine, good food, state fairs, dinner at NOON, auctions, his neighbors, Saturday nights in town, his shirt collar unbuttoned and, above all, a good soaking rain in August.

He is not much for droughts, ditches, thruways, experts, weeds, the eight-hour day, helping with the housework or grasshoppers.

Nobody else is so far from the telephone or so close to God. Nobody else gets so much satisfaction out of modern plumbing, favorable weather and good ice cream.

Nobody else can remove all those things from his pockets and on washday still have overlooked five "steeples," one cotter key, a rusty spike, three grains of corn, the stub end of a lead pencil, a square tape, a $4.98 pocket watch and a cupful of chaff in each trouser cuff.

A farmer is both Faith and Fatalist — he must have faith to continually meet the challenges of his capacities amid an ever-present possibility that an act of God (a late spring, an early frost, tornado, flood, drought) can bring his business to a standstill. You can REDUCE HIS ACREAGE, but you can't RESTRAIN HIS AMBITION.

Might as well put up with him — he is your friend, your competitor, your customer, your source of food and fiber, and self-reliant young citizens to help replenish your cities.

He is your countryman — a denim-dressed, business-wise, fast-growing statesman of stature.

And when he comes in at noon having spent the energy of his hopes and dreams, he can be recharged anew with the magic words: "The Market's Up."

To Protect Show Animals

September, in Lancaster County, is Fair time. It is also a time to be concerned about the health of show animals. Fairs should be a place where we can exhibit our animals; they should not be a place for spreading diseases and other animals. Be considerate of other exhibitors and of other show animals. If your animals have any infection or contagious problems, leave them at home; it's like keeping a sick child out of school to protect those who are healthy. If you do show, consult your veterinarian about necessary tests and protective vaccines.

When you return your livestock to the farm after the show, isolate them from other animals on the farm before introducing them to their herdmates.

To Fertilize Alfalfa Stands

The fall of the year is one of the best times to apply phosphorus and potash to established alfalfa stands. Many growers will topdress the field after the last cutting is removed. In addition, the stand can be fertilized next spring after the first cutting is removed. When the plants are fertilized in the fall they will be stronger next summer.

Since alfalfa is a very heavy feeder of both phosphorus and potash, these elements must be replaced for top yields. If the area is to be grazed in the fall instead of removing the final cutting, the fertilizer should be washed down with a rain before allowing livestock on the field; also bloating may result if grazed soon after application. Use the application rates as recommended on your soil test results.

To Check Stored Grain

Farmers should check all their tored grain at this time of year ecause heating of stored grain can be a symptom of insect activity or just too much moisture. In either case, the heating problem should be corrected before the grain is ruined. If grain requires pest control materials (as listed on page 66 of the 1987-88 Agronomy Guide), it should be done while the air temperature is still fairly high or above 60 degrees F. If it's moisture, then check for possible leaks in the roof. We have too much money invested in the seed, fertilizer and labor to lose it in storage.

To Stop Feeding Trees and Shrubs

The time is here when we should not be applying any fertilizer to rose bushes, trees and shrubs. The season's growing period is about over and new growth should have a chance to harden before cold weather arrives. When we fertilize during the fall we encourge new growth, which will be tender, and will winter-kill in zero weather.

It is best to wait until early spring to apply any plant food to these types of plants. Mulching is a good practice to help conserve moisture and control weeds, but keep the fertilizer in the bag until the 1988 season.

The Cooperative Extension Service is an affirmative action, equal opportunity educational institution.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

HOMO SAPIENS' FAMILY TREE

September 6, 1987

Background Scripture: Genesis 2:4 through 3:24.
Devotional Reading: Psalm 8.

"Whose side of the family do you take after?" Almost all of us have been asked that question at some time in our life. I look pretty much like my father, but I have traits of both my parents.

In a sense, we might say that this is also true of the whole human race. In the Book of Genesis, Adam is presented as deriving from two sources. On the one hand, Adam is of the earth, the created order — "then the Lord formed man of dust from the ground..." (2:7a). And later in Genesis 3 God says to Adam and Eve, "In the sweat of your face you shall eat bread till you return to the ground, for out of it you were taken; you are dust, and to dust you shall return" (3:19).

OUT OF THE DUST

There is nothing particularly unique about this view of human nature. Few would dispute that we are made of the stuff of nature — material finite and temporal. Furthermore, when we are referred to as having come from dust and bound to return to it, it would seem we have been assigned to natural boundaries, that pretty thoroughly circumscribe our potentialities and destinies.

But the writer of Genesis tells us that there is something else to our inheritance that takes us beyond the "dust" of matter. For God "breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living being" (2:7b). It was God's own spirit that transformed Adam from "dust" to "a living being".

Thus Adam, it would appear, had two inheritances: the "dust" of nature and the devine breath of God. It is this second inheritance, obviously, that is both unique and controversial in the world. There are lots of people who do not believe that homo sapiens is anything but "dust," let alone possessing a divine nature. While they would acknowledge that homo sapiens is related to the earth, from which they came, they would deny that we are similarly related to God by the presence of his "breath" or Spirit within us.

MISERY AND GRANDEUR

The Judao-Christian view of humanity has always emphasized both inheritances and to see in this duality the root of our human moral dilemmna — that we are frequently torn between these two natures: one that would lift us up, the other that would pull us down. Thus, we have tended to think of these as our "higher" and "lower" natures.

But we must remember that these terms — "divine" and "human," "higher" and "lower" — are only relative. Genesis does not present Adam's "dusty" inheritance as evil, low or miserable. Genesis is reports that Adam was made in God's image and pronounced it "very good" (1:31). Thus, it is closer to the Genesis view of creation to characterize our earthly nature, not so much as "evil," but as "finite". Obviously the evil people do arise out of that finitude, but we are not by our human nature condemned to be evil. Evil is what we do with what God gives us.

Instead of thinking of human nature, then, as depraved and doomed to destruction, Christians need to witness to our God-given divine potential of homo sapiens' often-maligned family tree.

CHECK (✓) THE FOLLOWING STATEMENTS WHICH APPLY TO YOU

_____ I WANT TO MAKE & SAVE MORE MONEY.
_____ I WANT LESS SHRINK AND HIGHER TEST WEIGHTS.
_____ I AM TIRED OF PAYING THE ELEVATOR TO STORE AND DRY MY CORN CROP.
_____ I WANT THE FLEXIBILITY TO SELL MY CROP, WHEN I WANT...WITHOUT MOISTURE DOCKAGE.

(If you've checked one or more of these statements - read the following to find out how.)

The one product that will satisfy all of these desires, is the AeroDry Grain Management System.

AeroDry uses natural fan forced air, controlled by computer, to dry your corn. There's no high heat, only mother nature's way of lowering moisture levels.

AeroDry can save you up to 75% of energy drying costs. The natural moisture removal process provides less shrink and higher test weights. You don't "cook" the quality out of your crop.

AeroDry's computer controls moisture levels day and night without baby-sitting. You make the profit the elevator makes, by selling your crop when you want - without moisture dockage.

If you're serious about making more money on your corn crop... you'll call AeroDry before the fall rush. Farm proven from the midwest to the east coast - AeroDry is FARM TECHNOLOGY FOR FARM PROFIT.

WILL IT PAY TO HARVEST THE CORN THIS YEAR....?

Predicting corn prices is not an easy task. Regardless of market prices... wouldn't you like to be making more money?

AeroDry Grain Management has developed a system for you to make more money on your crop... regardless of market prices.

The AeroDry system allows you to store and dry your own crop on the farm. You don't pay the elevator for storing or drying - you make their profit.

The AeroDry system uses natural fan forced air, controlled by computer, to dry your corn. There's no high heat to "cook" the quality out of your crop.

The natural air process provides less shrink and higher test weights, while saving up to 75% on energy costs.

Whether you're modifying existing bins or installing completely, AeroDry Grain Management will allow you to sell your crop when you want - without moisture dockage.

Farm proven from the midwest to the east coast - AeroDry is FARM TECHNOLOGY FOR FARM PROFIT.

Our farm's right off Pine Creek Exit of Route 220 between Lock Haven and Williamsport, PA. First tour at 10 a.m.

Trickle Irrigation Useful

UNIVERSITY PARK — Trickle, or drip irrigation frequently feeds small amounts of water to the plant root zone. Although primarily used in arid regions, trickle irrigation is also useful to prevent moisture stress for high value and labor intensive crops in the Northeast. Water is critical for seed germination, seedlings, flowering, fruit set and fruit enlargement. Trickle irrigation is used for crops grown on steep hillsides and also works well with saline water. Fertilizers delivered by trickle irrigation feed plants directly and more efficiently.

More information about the plant-soil-water relationships, system components, specific crop recommendations and system planning are contained in the 24-page booklet Trickle Irrigation in the Eastern United States, with authors from Maryland, New Jersey and New York.

Cooperative Assn. Annual Meeting Set

HARRISBURG — "Financing Agriculture Into the Next Century" is the theme for the Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives (PAFC) annual meeting, set September 29-30 here at the Sheraton-West.

Featured speaker at the evening banquet is Lt. Governor Mark Singel, who is discussing rural economic development in the Commonwealth.

The two-day symposium, designed for Northeastern cooperatives, begins Tuesday, September 29 with remarks by PAFC President Robert M. Dever, the assistant general manager of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative. The invited keynote speaker is Rep. Ed Jones, Tennessee.

Following the keynote, a distinguished panel is set to discuss the issue of financing both production agriculture and the agriculture and rural electric cooperatives that support that industry.

Farm Credit Administration Board Member Marvin Duncan is one of the panelists. He is joined by Paul Johnson, general manager of Agri-Mark; Roger Albee, Springfield Farm Credit Service; and Reider Bennett-White, Baltimore Farm Credit Service.

Three break-out sessions focus on financing production agriculture, the future of the Bank for Cooperative system and innovative financing options for cooperatives.

The annual awards banquet honors both an educator and a person who has shown distinguished service to PAFC and the cooperative movement. Past recipients of the Distinguished Service Award include Robert Reich, president of Northeastern Farm Credit; Wally Dunlap, past PAFC administrative director; Hal Doran, Penn State extension specialist in cooperative education; and George Steele, former Agway board chairman.

The second day's program is highlighted by the fourth annual Cooperative Month kick-off breakfast. The annual business meeting follows.

Registration for the full conference, which includes all meals and conference materials, is only $95.00 until September 18. Registration for Tuesday's program is only $75.00 until September 18. After that date, fees increase $15.00.

The final event is the first Cooperative Month Classic, a golf outing at Silver Spring Golf Course. The four-man scramble features prizes and a steak dinner. Registration is an additional $35.00.

The Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives is a trade association representing about 40 agricultural and rural cooperatives that contribute more than $3 billion to the economy of the Commonwealth each year.

PFU Supports November Referendum

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Farmers Union today announced its support for the upcoming statwide Referendum on a $100 million Farmalnd Preservation Bond issue. Voters will be deciding the Referendum's fate at the November 3rd General Election.

For many years the Pennsylvania Farmers Union, along with other concerned organizations and individuals, have supported efforts to seek legislation which would preserve prime farmland. Now the opportunity is here, not just for farmers, but for all citizens of Pennsylvania to join in an effort to save farmland, said Allen Deiter, President of the Pennsylvania Farmers Union.

Governor Casey's prompt action in signing legislation authorizing the Referendum and his strong support of it is a positive step toward preserving agriculture in Pennsylvania, Detier told the PFU Legislative Committee at their meeting in State College. The Committee later voted unanimously to support this Referendum.

"Pennsylvania has lost an average of 90,000 acres of farmland a year to development. This is a very disturbing fact, considering that agriculture provides one out of every five jobs in the state and adds billions of dollars to our state economy. It is critical that all voters in this state support this important issue," Deiter added.

The Pennsylvania Farmers Union is a general farm organization that represents approximately 4500 family farmers in 33 chartered counties.

Luncheon And New Bolton Tour Set

CAMP HILL — FARMER, the political action committee of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association (PFA), will sponsor a fundraising luncheon and tour of the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine's New Bolton Center at Kennett Square from 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., Sept. 10.

All members of the agricultural community are invited to attend.

In addition to a tour of the veterinary school's facilities, a guest speaker, Robert Wagner, northeastern director for American Farmland Trust, will discuss farmland preservation.

Cost of the event is $25 per person.

Proceeds will be used to support state legislative candidates of all major political parties in upcoming elections. FARMER, Farmers Allied for Responsive More Effective Representation, is a voluntary, bi-partisan organization.

Check Your Vacuum Regulator

Editor's Note:
The National Mastitis Council based in Arlington, VA, from time to time releases information related to dairy herd management. Here's important information about the operation of your milking machine.

ARLINGTON, Va. — The vacuum regulator on your milking system is one of the system's most important components.

It has two major functions: control the vacuum level and compensate for many forms of vacuum usage in order to maintain the present level. For example, it must compensate for the intermittant air admission of the pulsators, unit air bleeds and other unpredictable operator events such as put-ons and take-offs.

Pressure (negative pressure or vacuum) changes within the milking system occur at very high speeds approximately the speed of sound (1,080 feet per second). The control must react to these pressure changes rapidly and correct for sudden air admissions.

The types of regulators that respond rapidly to vacuum changes are the servo-diaphram types. They also are superior in load sensitivity characteristics. This means that the vacuum level is more constant under a wider range of air flow through the regulator.

Spring loaded sleeve type regulators are acceptable in performance. Dead weight controls usually are adequate for small milking systems. The lever weight controls are the least responsive and should be replaced for better system performance.

Service the vacuum control on a regular basis. The operating vacuum level should be checked each day. Change filters on a regular basis. Keep the internal operating valve clean. A 30-day interval for servicing the operating valve usually is sufficient.

Regulator performance can be tested with the use of an airflow meter. Increments of 5 to 10 cubic feet per minute (CFM) are admitted to the system. After each increment, the vacuum level is noted and recorded. An excellent regulator will sustain the vacuum level within ½ inch of mercury when 90 percent of the available vacuum reserve is admitted to the system. If the vacuum level drops up to 1 inch of mercury, the regulator is marginal. If vacuum drops over 1 inch, the regulator should be replaced if a thorough cleaning and adjustment does not improve performance.

A simple test can be made by the operator which will give some indication of regular performance, provided that vacuum supply is adequate. Duplication of a fall-off is a good indicator of system performance. The test is done simply by turning one or more units upside down and observing the vacuum level. One unit for every 6 to 8 units in the system is suggested. The remaining milking units should be pulsated, but do not make this test while milking cows. Follow the same guidelines as above with respect to system performance. For example, if two units are turned upside down with the shut-off valves fully opened in a parlor with 16 units, and if the vacuum drops only 0.4 inch of mercury, excellent performance is indicated.

In summary, remember that the vacuum regulator is one of the most important components of the milking system. The filter and operating valve must be kept properly serviced and clean. A regular check of regulator performance can be made by duplicating a unit fall-off and observing the ability of the regulator to sustain vacuum level.

Cut Soil Erosion Losses

LANCASTER — Vast improvements in seeds, fertilizers and chemicals often hide losses in productivity caused by soil erosion. Erosion that many times is so slight you never realize the soil is disapperaring. As a result, severly eroded knobs and hillsides simply don't have the productive capacity of other land.

According to Fran Lucas of the Soil Conservation Service, this fact is very apparent now. Corn growing on these severely eroded knobs and hillsides is showing the effects of prolonged dry weather. Much of this corn has already stopped developing while corn planted on the better soil is still growing.

Lucas said that severely eroded soils tend to be more acidic, have lower organic matter and less water-holding capacity. They are also more subject to compaction. As a result crops on these soils are the first to show moisture stress in dry weather.

Erosion steals the best portion of your soil first. Organic matter and the smallest particles of soil, which contain the most minerals and plant nutrients, are easily carried away by water runoff. Attached to those particles are pesticides and commercial fertilizer the landowner has paid for and never received benefits.

Promotion Board Member Pushes Ice Cream For Breakfast

How about hot oatmeal with a huge scoop of vanilla ice cream?

Or a giant pancake folded over strawberry ice cream and topped with frozen strawberries.

Why not, says Dick Shellenberger, a Lancaster County farmer turned dairy marketeer who's trying the idea in Kreider Dairy Farm Family Restaurants.

Shellenberger has headed processing and sales for Noah W. Kreider and Sons, Manheim, since the farm opened its first dairy store in 1972.

And as a member of the advisory board of the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, he felt the breakfast idea passed all the tests. Imaginative. Catchy. Bells ringing at the cash register.

Better yet it fit with his new responsibilities as manager of Kreider's growing chain of restaurants. Three are now operating in Manheim, Hershey and Lebanon. A fourth is in the works.

Shellenberger didn't need any market study to find out if the ice cream breakfast would go. He just put it on the menu.

And hundreds of diners prove him right each morning during the summer by ordering such breakfast entrees as hot oatmeal ala mode.

"The ice cream gives you the cream and sugar, plus that little something extra," says Dick eating a big spoonful.

Oatmeal ala mode is the number one favorite of the five ice cream breakfasts now being offered.

Pancake Jubilee, a solid second, features a giant pancake folded over creamy strawberry ice cream and topped with frozen strawberries.

Third choice among the adventuresome is the Orange Eye-Opener. It's orange juice with a dip of orange sherbet.

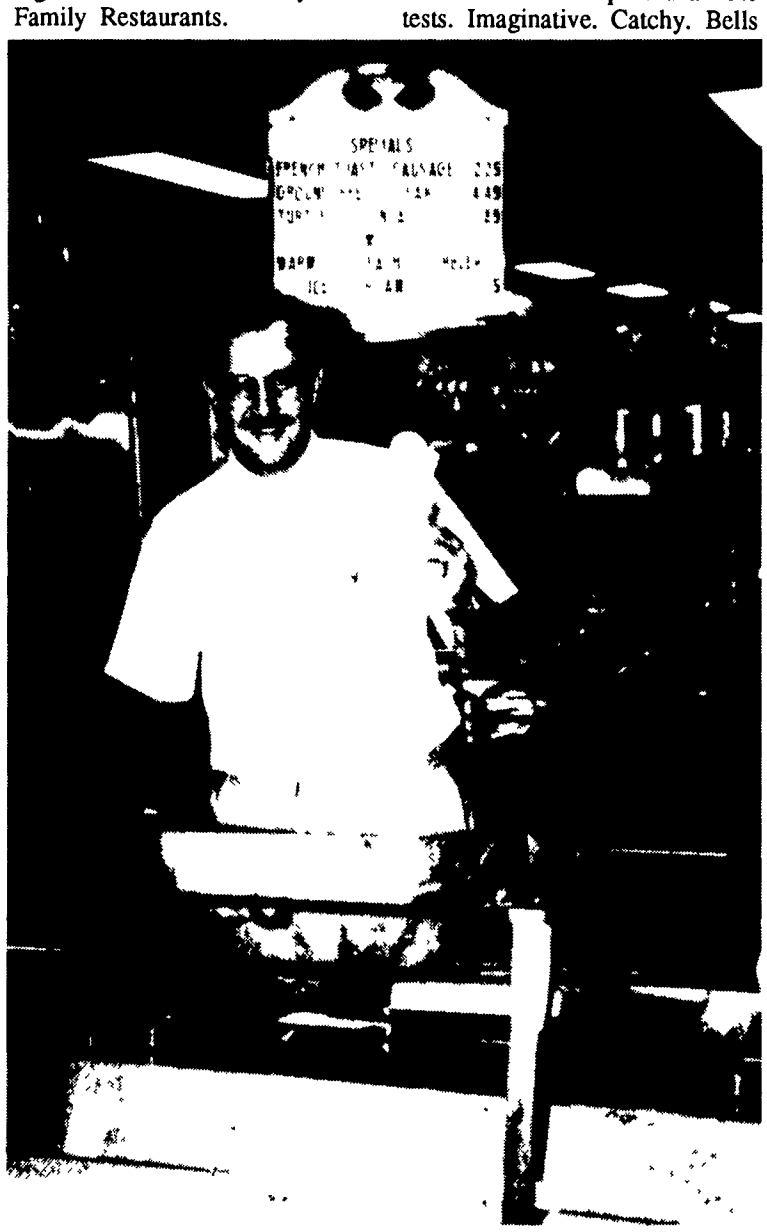
In fourth place is Corn Flakes Deluxe, a big scoop of creamy vanilla ice cream plopped on top of a bowlful of crunchy cornflakes.

Finishing fifth is Coffee Supreme, black coffee with a spoonful of vanilla ice cream.

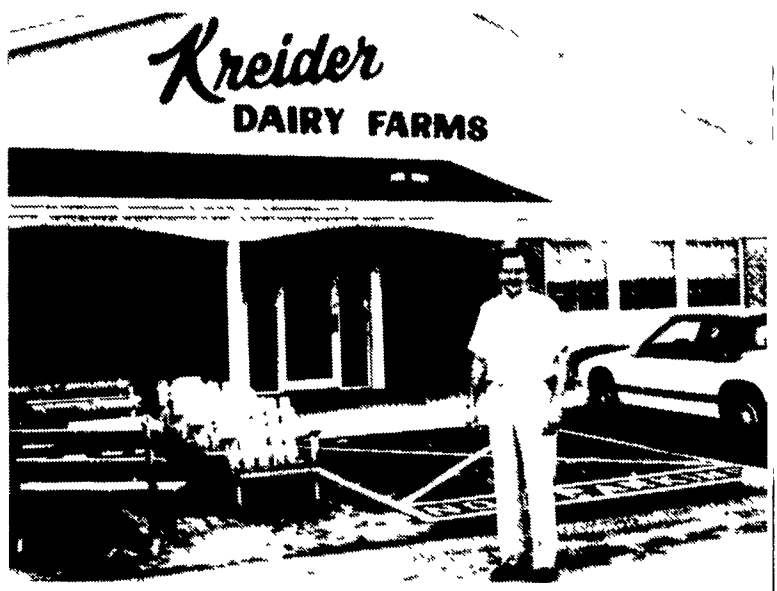
Milk and homemade dairy products get top billing at all meals, of course, keeping with the Kreider dairy farm tradition.

The farm's dairy array includes whole, low fat and skim milks plus chocolate milk, buttermilk, light and heavy creams and 1,400 to 2,000 gallons of ice cream each week during the summer.

And Dick never misses a milk promotion opportunity. Place mats from Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program remind diners to "Make It Milk." "I buy 150,000 at a clip," he comments.



Shellenberger says the Kreider Dairy Stores remain their biggest milk outlet, but their restaurants are using more milk as their clientel grows.



"It takes promotion to move milk," says Dick Shellenberger who heads processing and sales for milk jugger Noah W. Kreider & Sons, Manheim. Their restaurants offer free milk with their entrees.

Price promotes too. A quick study reveals that milk is the best beverage buy at Kreider's. It sells for 45 cents a glass, ice tea for 55 cents and soft drinks from 60 to 80 cents. A switch from most Pennsylvania restaurants.

Dairy specials also move milk. One day it might be warm peach cobbler with ice cream ($1.75). A recent night owl special was Turtle Sundae ($1.89).

And who can say "no" to 28 ice cream flavors. Strawberry Cheesecake and Peanut Butter Sundae are Shellenberger originals.

Everyone has a birthday, right? Dick makes sure they think Kreider's and ice cream by offering a free sundae on the special day. But he doesn't leave it to chance. Dick announced the free birthday treat on side panels of Kreider milk cartons.

Kreider also gives away 40,000 to 45,000 glasses of farm fresh, frosty milk each month on basic meals. A year around promotion.

And how's this for marketing milk — the farm produces Kosher milk for markets in New York, New Jersey and Baltimore, a story in itself.

The dairy stores still move the most milk for Kreider but Dick sees the restaurants as another huge market for milk and dairy products.

His insight as a restaurant manager made him a leading supporter of Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program's joint breakfast promotion with McDonald's last year in Johnstown, Altoona, and also at Erie. The promotion later won International honors..

Do milk promotions really sell milk? Today, it takes a herd of 425 grade Holsteins to meet the demands of Kreider's retail operations.

How about the ice cream breakfasts? Do they pay? Try to get a table at a Kreider Dairy Farms Family Restaurant some morning around 10 a.m. The place will be jampacked.

Jadene Wins NW PA Holstein Show

BY NANCY KUNICK

Twice in one week "Jadene Very Rae" was named Grand Champion at major shows. The senior two year old took first place in her class August 26 at the NW Pa. Holstein show and then stepped out to claim senior and grand champion honors. Just four days earlier the picture was the same in Huntingdon at the Central Championship Show. "We're quite proud of her. It's not often a two year old gets Grand, and at two shows that size," said Ed Doeberiener. Doeberiener of Queens-Manor Holsteins in Jamestown, Pa. recently purchased the cow in partnership with Steve Hoover of Martinsburg, and Robert Gavin of Kansas. The VG-86 is projected at over 20,000 milk and 850 fat in 305 days. Although fresh since March 28th she also won Best Udder of the Show at the Crawford County fair last week.

The Grand Championship made the sixth consecutive year that Queens-Manor has taken the banner home. Eight blue ribbons also gave Premier Exhibitor honors to Queens-Manor making five years in a row for that award.

Morrell Farms of Cochranton also had quite a day. Dennis Patrick of Woodbine, Maryland judged the show and pulled "Ebe-Tide Libido Poppy" into first place in the aged cow division. She went on to be reserve grand champion and also was the "Best Bred and Owned" at the show. The Brookfield Elevation Libido daughter is EX-90 and as a six year old milked 20,629 milk and 768 fat and was Honorable Mention All Pa. Aged Cow.

Morrells also had the Reserve Champion Bull "Ebe-Tide M Jordan" who topped the junior yearling bull class. This bull was the Grand Champion at the Pa. Spring Show this year in Harrisburg according to Candy Morrell. These reserve championships along with other first places helped Morrells to acquire the Premier Breeder award.

The Grand Champion Bull went to the Sr. yearling bull owned by Marlene Baxter of Stoneboro, Pa. Placings follow for the classes.

New Jersey Dairies Named

CEDAR KNOLLS, NJ — Congratulations to New Jersey dairy farmers as they join New York State and Pennsylvania in the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program. This highly successful Dairy of Distinction project began in 1983 to commend dairy farmers for their efforts in maintaining beautiful farmsteads, as well as promoting dairy products in a more wholesome environment.

The program originated in New York State, where they have already honored nearly 300 dairy farmers. This marks the first year of participation in both Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Farms that apply are judged on the roadside appearance of building, grounds, and surroundings in early spring. The 18x24 inch Dairy of Distinction signs, which are to be displayed by the roadside, are presented during June Dairy Month. Winning entries are judged annually to ensure that they continue to maintain the standards of excellence set by the program.

Out of the 24 New Jersey applicants vying for the prestigious awards, the following Garden State dairy farmers have been recognized as Dairies of Distinction:

Adams Beef Producer On National Board

PORTLAND, OR — An Adams County beef producer was appointed director on the National Livestock and Meat Board at that group's 65th annual meeting August 23-25 in Portland, Oregon.

Paul Heffner of Gettysburg, who is chairman of the Pennsylvania Beef Council, was seated on the Board of Directors of the Meat Board, representing Pennsylvania's beef and veal industries. He had been recommended for appointment by the PBC.

The Meat Board is a coalition of livestock and meat industry interests that have been building consumer demand for meat through industry check-off since 1922.

The Beef Industry Council, a division of the Meat Board and a federation of 41 state beef councils, works to build consumer dollar demand for beef and veal products.

Using funds generated by the dollar per head check-off beginning last October, BIC produces TV, radio, and print advertising. "Beef: Real Food for Real People" theme of the successful campaign scored well with consumers last season and will be used again.

Heffner said, "I'm honored to be part of this national board. The overall objectives of the BIC are to make beef and veal fashionable again and show how they fit into the modern day diet. Positive results are beginning to show and I believe this approach is the right one.

"We are committed to make beef and veal production profitable once again for the producer," he added.

The Pennsylvania Beef Council works closely with the Beef Industry Council by distributing beef and veal promotional literature, recipes, and video tapes, produced by that national council, to supermarkets, food shows, fairs, and other events.

Funding for these programs comes from beef, dairy, and veal producers' $1.00 check-off investment.

For more information, contact the Pennsylvania Beef Council at 4714 Orchard Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110, 717/545-6000.

Milking Shorthorn Takes Supreme Champion

"This is a massive individual," said Judge Parkard,"She is very strong. She has a very desirableness in the correctness of her feet and legs. And I find that commendable because she has been carrying a lot of weight for many miles. Her udder is dry, but even dry it is of very high quality."

Sam Yoder, of Pinesedge Farm in Shoemakersville, accepted the banner for his daughter, Nedra Koller, who is the owner of Pinesedge GK Kizzi, who was unable to attend the show. Yoder received the supreme dairy cow banner at the Allentown Fair in 1975 for his Holstein entry. Yoder has 100 head of Milking Shorthorn, Holstein, Brown Swiss and Jersey at his farm.

After leading the 4-Hers to winning all day Wednesday, Mildred Seeds, 4-H leader for 25 years in Chester County decided it was her turn and led the winners in a different way. These winners were hers. Seeds, of Top O'The Hill Farm in Downingtown in Chester County, dominated the Jersey division ring. When the dust finally settled Seeds had captured all the championship titles and 12 blue ribbons. Seeds took first place in Best Udder, Best Three Females, Senior Get of Sire, Produce of Dam and Dam and Daughter.

The Jersey grand champion was the 3-year-old Top O'The Hill Silver Beacon Tinsel, the daughter of TOH Milestone Tempest. The sire is Valley Stream Silver Beacon. This 3-year-old took dairy supreme champion of the colored breeds two years in a row at the Cecil County Fair in Maryland. She took grand champion at the Goshen Fair and at the Schuylkill County Fair in July.

"She has a super udder. This is just the type of udder we like to see, but we don't get to see very often. She has a very wide udder with the correct teat placement," said Judge Packard of Seeds grand champion.

Her reserve grand champion, the 2-year-old TOH Milestone Tammy is the daughter of TOH Special Tasty and was sired by Advancer Sleeping Milestone. Her intermediate calf, TOH Silver Beacon Treasure took the junior championship.

It was a family affair at the 135th Allentown Fair Dairy Shows on Wednesday and Thursday. And apparently some of the same families have been battling against each other in the dairy show ring for so many years it has become a tradition.

However, in 1987 one of these traditions may come to an end as the youngest of the Urmy children starts college this fall and may not show next year. Although the Urmy tradition may end there are many faces, many new names to begin some new traditions at the Allentown Fair.

Gayle Urmy, 18, daughter of Ralph and Jean Urmy of RD4, Coopersburg collected rosettes and ribbons in both the Brown Swiss and the Holstein divisions for her tenth year. It was her family's 22nd year of competition. Gayle will be attending the Lehigh County Community College in the fall and there are no younger Urmy children or grand children to take her place. The Buzzing Acres Farm has been winning grand championships, according to Ralph for the last ten years.

By the close of the open show Gayle had gathered the grand and reserve and junior championship titles in the Brown Swiss class. She also won the junior championship in the Holstein class in both shows.

Urmy may have won the grand championship in the Holstein class if it had not been for another family battle in the show ring. However, this particular battle was between members of the same family name. The members of the Russell Miller and Carl Miller families, both of Tamaqua RD3, were competing against each other and creating their own collection of ribbons and titles. The Millers took home blue ribbons and rosettes from every breed except the Milking Shorthorn division.

Heidi Miller, daughter of Russell and Christine, won the Holstein grand championship with her 2-year-old in both shows. According to her brother Henry, who was working on his own impressive collection of awards, she had been winning the grand championship every where she went. Finess did win the title at the Lehighton Fair, Southeast District Show and at the Schuylkill County Fair and plans on competting at the Bloomsburg Fair next.

Henry Miller won the 1987 supreme champion dairy bull banner with his Holstein bull. Out of the three entries Judge Packard selected this Holstein was chosen for his strength and size.

Frank Miller, son of Carl and Judy Miller, took many blue ribbons in the Brown Swiss division and took the reserve grand champion title in the open show.

Carl Miller, Frank's brother, swept the Guernsey class taking all first spots in the open show and championships except for two. Miller took the grand champion title in the open show as selected by Judge Packard. Miller's 5-year-old was selected as having a definite advantage in her stature, balance of udder and in her style in moving.

Hendricks, 15 -year-old son of John and Elaine Hendricks of Phoenixville, prevented Carl from making a total sweep. Hendricks took the junior championship in both shows and the grand championship title in the 4-H show with his junior yearling, Kimbervu farm Jay Crystal. He has won the junior championship three times this summer with this Kimbervu yearling.

Karen Sanner finally achieved her goal she had set for the summer. Sanner, 14, daughter of Gary and Theda Sanner of Downingtown, according to her 4-H leader,

Nutrient Lab At York

YORK — The York County Conservation District in cooperation with York County Fair Officials have scheduled to have on hand at the fair, Monday, September 14, and Tuesday, September 15, the Chesapeake Bay Program, mobile nutrient laboratory. The mobile lab is a joint educational project between the Penn State University and the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resource (DER). The lab is designed to assist farmers and landowners efficiently and safely manage nutrients on the farm, so that productivity is maintained and pollution to our water resources is reduced, thus maintaining or improving local water quality and the water quality of the Chesapeake Bay.

The lab is designed to analyze soil and manure samples for nutrient levels, specifically phosphorus and potassium levels, in the soil, and nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium levels in the manure sample. Using this data recommendations can be made to the farmer on rates of manure and fertilizer needed to satisfy his crop needs, and at the same time insure that excesses are reduced which results in savings to the farmer in reduced fertilizer bills, and maintenance of our water quality.

The lab is also capable of testing water samples for nitrate levels, which in excess can lead to health problems for primarily human infants and livestock.

The lab will be on display at the fair and a representative from PA DER and the Conservation District will be on hand to answer any questions, as well as provide literature regarding the Chesapeake Bay cleanup efforts both local and state wide.

DEALER INQUIRIES INVITED

Chore-Time's ULTRAFLO® feeder can free you from your chains

We have probably been too modest up to now about the merits of our new generation ULTRAFLO® cage feeder vs. the old style chain feeders some of our competitors are still trying to sell you. In fact, the only negative comments about our feeder come from our competition, not our customers. So we would like to point out the bare facts:

FEED SAVINGS: On-farm results show a feed savings of ½ lb per 100 birds per day – over $10,000 per year savings on a 100,000-bird house Year after year

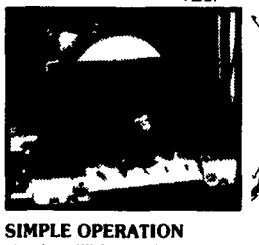
TROUBLE-FREE DESIGN: Our feeder has only two moving parts – the one-piece auger plus each drive wheel; their chain has more Our corners are heavy 12 ga. zinc plated tubing for long life; their corners have a reputation for trouble and short life.

PROVEN DESIGN. Over 10 million birds are already on our feeder worldwide Also, it was proven in 5 years of on-farm testing before introduction

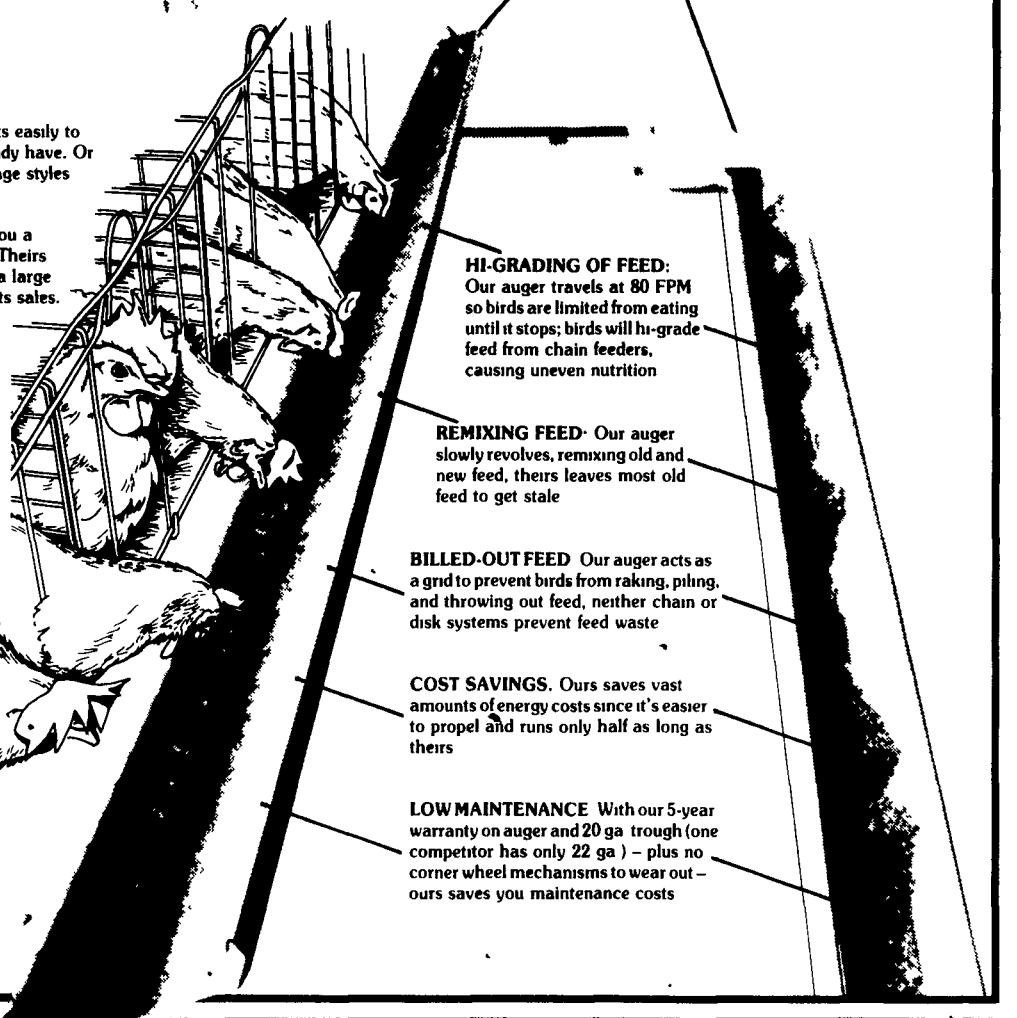
EASY ADAPTABILITY: Ours adapts easily to existing cage systems you may already have. Or choose from our wide selection of cage styles

5-YEAR WARRANTY· Ours gives you a 5-year warranty on auger and trough Theirs doesn't. In fact, their dealers derive a large percentage of their income from parts sales. Ours don't

MICROPROCESSOR CONTROL· Our control lets you program feeding time to the second, to match the exact time of one circuit Control number of feedings, time of each feeding – also 10-second "Stimulation Cycles" between feedings, to minimize separation, and improve your birds' feed intake



SIMPLE OPERATION "Push-pull" Power Units with ⅓ or ½ HP motor are located in a cage, have hardened steel gears for trouble-free operation



HI-GRADING OF FEED: Our auger travels at 80 FPM so birds are limited from eating until it stops; birds will hi-grade feed from chain feeders, causing uneven nutrition

REMIXING FEED· Our auger slowly revolves, remixing old and new feed, theirs leaves most old feed to get stale

BILLED-OUT FEED Our auger acts as a grid to prevent birds from raking, piling, and throwing out feed, neither chain or disk systems prevent feed waste

COST SAVINGS. Ours saves vast amounts of energy costs since it's easier to propel and runs only half as long as theirs

LOW MAINTENANCE With our 5-year warranty on auger and 20 ga trough (one competitor has only 22 ga) – plus no corner wheel mechanisms to wear out – ours saves you maintenance costs

30 YEARS AGO
THIS WEEK

- Last week's one-day rain and scattered showers since then have failed to aid stunted corn in southeastern Pennsylvania and many farmers are chopping damaged crops for silage, the state Department of Agriculture reported Wednesday.

The department also said that the formal request for drought aid from Berks County has been received in Harrisburg, but that no action can be taken until the state disaster committee meets. A meeting is scheduled for sometime the week of Sept. 16.

- A limited number of registered fall boars are to be offered at the bred gilt sale to be held Feb. 22 by the newly formed Lancaster County Swine Producers Assn.

The directors of the association in a meeting held Thursday night at the Farm Bureau Cooperative decided that 10 good registered fall boars of various breeds may be offered.

- Basic studies are helping pinpoint location of blackhead parasites in turkeys. This should lead to timing of drugs to knock out the organisms when they are most vulnerable.

Much of the USDA work on this costly and serious disease is being carried on with a harmless strain of the blackhead parasite. Use of this strain has helped researchers to turn up other new and useful information on disease aspects that are obscure when the disease is severe.

- Rats have been shown to be carriers of atrophic rhinitis- a serious swine disease commonly called "crooked snout," the U.S. Department of Agriculture says.

Findings by scientists outside USDA had previously indicated that cats and rabbits were carriers of atrophis rhinitis.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING AUGUST 30, 1987

FAIR WEEK FOR FIELDWORK: Four days were rated suitable for fieldwork. The major activities for the week were: harvesting oats, hay, haylage, grass silage, corn silage, fruit, potatoes and other vegetables; fall plowing; seeding alfalfa; early planting of wheat and barley; clipping pastures; machinery maintenance and caring for livestock.

TOBACCO: Southern region reporters estimated 50 percent of the tobacco was harvested, about the same as last year's progress.

FRUIT: Harvest of apples was estimated to be 28 percent complete which compares to 29 percent last year. The peach crop was 79 percent picked, 2 points behind last year's progress.

FALL PLANTING: Our reporters estimate that 10 percent of the wheat has been planted for harvest next year compared to 5 percent last year. Barley planting progressed to 8 percent complete, about the same as in 1986.

FALL PLOWING: Across the state, fall plowing was reported to be 33 percent complete, the same as last year.

HAY AND PASTURE: The second cutting of alfalfa was 95 percent complete, a year ago it was virtually complete. The third cutting of alfalfa was 55 percent complete compared to 71 percent last year. The fourth cutting of alfalfa was 15 percent complete compared to 13 percent a year ago. The second cutting of clover-timothy was 80 percent harvested, 5 points behind last year's harvest. The quality of hay made during the week was rated good by 35 percent of our reporters, fair by 52 percent, and poor by 13 percent. The amount of feed being obtained from pastures was rated above average by 9 percent, average by 29 percent, and below average by 62 percent of our respondents.

Kirkland Gives 1987 Dairy Outlook

MILK PRICES

Minnesota-Wisconsin Milk Price

With CCC purchases at very low levels during the spring flush months and continuing on through July, M-W prices began to increase in June 1987. The M-W price has been above 1986 levels throughout the first half of 1987 despite a 25-cent cut in the support price in January. The M-W price should continue to increase throughout the rest of 1987 even though another 25-cent reduction in the support price is scheduled in October. The currently strong commercial market has pushed butter prices on the Chicago market above CCC purchase levels and increases in cheese prices on the Chicago market have pushed block and barrel prices to with ½ and 1-cent of the CCC purchase price, respectively, as of July 1987. As supplies began to tighten further in the last half of 1987 (as traditionally occurs), the M-W should increase but may not reach the levels during the last months in 1987 as it did during the same period in 1986. The M-W should average between $11.15 and $11.35 for 1987 depending on the degree of increase in the fall and winter months of 1987.

Federal Order Prices

The Class I price in Order #2 should average about 1% to 3% higher, around $13.80 to $13.90, for 1987. The average Class II price is expected to be from 0.5% to 1% higher, or from $11.20 to $11.35, in 1987. The average blend price in 1987 should be from 1% to 2% higher and range from $12.15 to $12.30. Some factors contributing to this slightly higher blend price are decreased total milk marketings, from 5% to 6.5% lower, and slightly higher Class I sales, about 0.1% higher in 1987.

The Order #4 average Class I price is expected to be from 1.5% to 3% higher, from $14.35 to $14.50, in 1987. Class II prices should average between $11.30 to $11.40, 0.3% to 0.9% higher than in 1986. As a result of these slightly higher prices and higher Class I sales, from 1.5% to 2.5%, whose effects are offset somewhat by slightly higher, from 0.5% to 1.5%, total marketings, blend prices should be from 1.5% to 2.% higher in 1987 and should range from $12.80 to $12.90.

The average Class I price in Order #36 is expected to range between $13.30 and $13.40 in 1987, from 0.5% to 1.5% higher than in 1986. Class II prices in 1987 should average between $11.30 and $11.40, from 0.1% to 0.5% higher than in 1986. Slightly lower, from 1% to 2%, total marketings and slightly higher, from 0.2% to 0.7%, Class I sales should result in blend prices for Order #36 that range from $12.30 to $12.45, from 0.5% to 1% higher than in 1986.

Average Pennsylvania Wholesale Milk Price

With the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency (RCMA) now bargaining for higher Class I prices in the Northeast, dairy farmers who are members of RCMA could see a bonus in their monthly milk check in the fall and winter of 1987. No one can predict how successful RCMA will be in achieving higher prices for dairy farmers. However, with supplies already tightening up in July, over-order prices are more likely to be effectively achieved for Northeastern farmers than in any time in the past. A meeting to discuss the possibility of activating a "call order" is scheduled in September by the Market Administrator of Federal Order #2. This is an indication that milk supplies for some plants in Order #2 may be tightening up enough to call in milk from Order pool plants.

As the M-W, and Federal Order blend prices are expected to increase during the last half of 1987, the average Pennsylvania wholesale milk price will increase as well. The 1987 average wholesale milk price should range between $12.75 and $12.90, 0.5% to 1.7% higher than in 1986. Any over-order price received by RCMA members will push these levels higher.

CCC Purchases

CCC purchases for the first half of 1987 were 4.3 billion pounds and were around 50% lower than in 1986. For the first three weeks in July, CCC purchases were running around 70% lower than in July 1986. CCC purchases could decline even further as the milk supply is expected to really tighten up in the fall and winter if production continues to decline and commercial consumption continues to increase at the same rate. USDA projections for 1987 CCC purchases have been revised to 5.3 billion pounds M.E. If CCC purchases hold the current percentage decline from last years levels throughout the remainder of 1987, CCC purchases may be even lower than 5.3 billion pounds. In fact, CCC purchases would be about 4.8 billion pounds if the same percentage decrease now occurring in July occurs in the rest of the year. Look for CCC purchases to be around 5.0, maybe a little less and maybe a little more, but should not reach the currently projected level of 5.3 billion pounds.

Calcium Linked To Lower Blood Pressure

PORTLAND, Oregon — The National Dairy Board Institute for Nutrition and Cardiovascular Research officially opened at Oregon Health Sciences University (OHSU) today. The event is the culmination of a relationship which began in 1980 with dairy farmer support of several calcium/hypertension projects.

Coupled with the opening was the announcement of two separate studies directed by David McCarron, M.D., co-head of OHSU's division of Nephrology and Hypertension and now director of the Research Institute. Both studies, one still underway and one completed, show a favorable connection between calcium intake and reduced hypertension.

In the clinical trial underway, the effects of dietary calcium supplementation were compared with that of calcium tablets. In the study of normal and hypertensive men and women (average age 45), both dietary and supplemental calcium were shown to lower blood pressure in a portion of the study population. In addition, dietary calcium tended to reduce blood pressure more than supplemental calcium in the females.

"These findings suggest that the tendency of women to consume less dietary calcium may be a factor in increases in blood pressure observed in women as they age," explained Dr. McCarron.

In the other trial, older individuals (average age 60 years) were treated for up to one year with 1000 mg of additional calcium daily. The added calcium intake was able to maintain a reduction in blood pressure for 48 weeks in a percentage of the participants. Compared to a placebo, the reduction achieved was 8mmHg in their systolic pressures and a 5mmHg in their diastolic blood pressures. At the end of the 12-month trial, their average blood pressure was 135/81 mmHg, a value within the normal range (140/90 mmHg).

"The support of this type of research has tremendous impact on the health of the American public and on the future of the dairy industry," according to Joseph Westwater, CEO of the National Dairy Board.

Westwater went on to say that the investment of dairy farmers across America in the Board has made it possible to establish the Research Institute at OHSU, "marking a major milestone for the industry."

The new Institute, also supported by the National Institutes for Health and the U.S. Department of Agriculture, furthers the National Dairy Board's reputation as an innovator in nutrition and biomedical research. The Dairy Board commitment over the next three years will total $4 million.

"The funding of the Institute will enable dairy nutrition research to be more targeted and more cost-effective," said Ardath DeWall, chairperson of the nutrition research and education committee of the National Dairy Board. "And, that translates to more timely access to scientific data that can favorably affect the marketing and promotion of dairy products."

The national Dairy Board was established by Act of Congress in 1983.

by TOM BREWER
Agricultural Economist

"We know how to produce it, now we have to learn how to market it." How many times have we heard a farm leader or someone interested in agriculture make that statement? Perhaps I am overly sensitive, since I have spent the last 30 years of my career in the field of marketing, but it seems to me that this view pips up, generally with renewed vigor, only when farm surpluses build up and prices are low.

We heard very little about the need to better market farm output during the 1970s. Markets and marketing were all but forgotten by the farm segment of our population. But then came the 80s and suddenly we were again hearing such statements as, "We can now grow two blades of grass where only one grew before and make more grass-fed beef per acre of cropland but we can't sell it at reasonable prices. We need to expand our marketing effort." The implication is clearly that the dilemma can be overcome if somehow we could do a better job of marketing.

"We need," it's been said, "to convince consumers (or the Commodity Credit Corporation) to buy more, hopefully at higher prices." "Marketers," advocates of this belief continue, "need to convince consumers or industrial buyers that they need more agricultural output and if they would only purchase more both these buyers and agriculture would be better off than before."

Seems simple doesn't it? But to do it, would require a momumental effort. It's difficult to convince buyers they need more in the first place and nearly impossible to convince them they need more at a higher price. Can it be done? Some think so.

Since the end of the 1970s, commodity groups, one after another, have come up with about the same idea — Promote and advertise. "If a good promotional and advertising campaign is developed, consumers will buy more of the commodity and will thus bid up prices," they reason. "After all the beer companies, tobacco companies and U.S. auto manufacturers have paid lots of money to do just that," they continue. "Aren't their advertisements found all over the place?"

What's that which I hear some of you ask, skeptically? Oh! You want to know how it's working for them. Well, in each case mentioned above, total units sold each year have been dropping. Yes, even the sales of foreign made cars are down this year. There are products though, which are being advertised and promoted, whose sales are increasing. So I guess you have a point Mr. Skeptic, advertising and promotion may not always increase sales but you'd agree, I presume, that it might possibly reduce the rate of any decline. There are, however limits to what can be accomplished through advertising and promotion and they are often ignored.

Consumer-buyers have limited amounts of money to spend and once it's all spent and credit extended to whatever limits imposed by lenders, nothing more can or will be purchased no matter how much advertising or promotion is undertaken.

So what does this have to do with food purchases? After all food is more necessary than an automobile or a micro-wave for that matter — at least when hungry. Consumers will buy food before they purchase such things as a television or at least one would expect rational buyers to take care of food needs first. I wonder if they think of food when buying a new stereo though.

Most food purchasing families wouldn't be constrained by lack of money unless they had previously made so many time payment commitments for each weeks or months income that they couldn't possibly meet all those fixed obligations and increase their outlays for food at the same time. There probably are some families in that situation but over time some of these time-payment obligations can be eliminated.

Then consumers can keep future levels of such obligations down and increase their outlays for food couldn't they? They sure could, but even if they would they still might not purchase any more food. The human stomach and the consumer's awareness of nutrition and health and the problems associated with being overweight could place limits on the quantity of food purchased.

Does promotion pay? There are may viewpoints, each with merit, but I don't know. Does it make the consumer better informed and better able to make the correct choice. In many cases it probably does.

But how much of the advertising and promotion effort is simply "my product is better than yours?" Vadalia in Georgia, South-Texas, and Walla Walla in Washington are battling each other in the press and through advertising and promotion programs aimed at convincing consumers they each has the 'sweetest' onion. Hawaii even has its favorite. Much money is being spent by each of their regional groups to convince consumers their onion is best.

It may work but will people put two slices on their hamburgers? Are all consumers apt to choose the same onion? Will they stick to a particular onion once its tried or will they switch around? Unless one of those onions is really preferred by most consumers or some do start putting two slices on their sandwiches what will be gained? Overall, the promotion and advertising isn't likely to expand total domestic purchases of onions. It may though, expand purchases of some onions while reducing purchases of others.

With all the emphasis on fiber in the diet,.per capital levels of fruit and vegetable consumption have been rising while per capita beef consumption has been falling. Is this cause and effect? Could the beef industry reverse its trend with a big promotional campaign? Would the fruit and vegetable industries retaliate with campaigns of their own? Would consumers then consume more fruits and vegetables or more beef or more of each and less poultry and milk for example.

Who knows who would gain and who would lose? If such a situation were to occur, as it has between poultry and pork, Northwestern apples and those from other regions and regionally produced onions to mention but a few, we can be reasonably sure of the following:

• Consumers will be better informed about the merits of various food products as well as their shortcomings which will likely be pointed out by those promoting products that compete for space in the consumer's stomach. Informed consumers make better choices and a more efficient marketing system might result. Furthermore much of the promotional effort subsidizes other consumer items such as radio and television entertainment and magazines and newspapers. Consumers probably benefit.

• The producers of the commodity may gain also, particularly if their products posess qualities that are now of greater importance to some people due to newly discovered needs of those consumers. Of if on balance they convince consumers to eat a little more of their product even though they might eat a little less of someone elses.

• The industries that do the advertising and promotion gain. Indeed that is the reason they are in business and such activities are the source of their incomes.

What's that you say? You believe advertising is more of a defensive strategy than an offensive one. Perhaps you are right but I caution, defense may be important too. The entire purpose of this column is not to evaluate the value of commodity advertising. That you'll each have to do, taking into account costs incurred and any perceived short- and long-run benefits. I am simply trying to encourage you to give the general topic some thought

Perhaps you'll come to the same conclusion I have There is no way that advertising and promotion can increase domestic consumption of food to levels that will result in substantial increases in all farm prices. Some may gain but others will lose and it is conceivable that with many, costs may exceed gains.

In addition to promotion and advertising there is another possibility for the improvement of the agricultural marketing system. The system can look for ways of becoming more efficient. The profit motive pushes all marketers in that direction.

Initially, improvements in efficiency might lead to higher prices for agricultural products. However the profits gained as a result of increased efficiency may not be reflected in either lower consumer prices or higher farm prices both of which would benefit farmers producing the product.

Farmers, if they want their share of efficiency gains, will generally have to rely on competition among marketers to provide it. If it doesn't, they can pool their individual supplies and bargain collectively with users of their farm product to obtain their shares of efficiency gains or they could vertically integrate into the market and provide competition for existing buyers. The latter alternative requires a great deal of resolve on the part of farmers, a unanimity of approval among affected farmers and lots of capital. Many farm groups have done it and some, though not all, have been very successful.

The domestic marketing system works well. Consumers are provided with a wide variety of high quality foods requiring only a small percentage of their incomes.

The system can be improved. It can and will attempt to reach out to overseas markets. Whether or not the system will be successful in that effort will be determined more by international politics than by the strength or quality of the marketing system's efforts.

The system can and will become more efficient. It can and will continue to better meet our consumers perceived needs. It cannot guarantee a "satisfactory price" for all that farmers want to produce.

Mildred Seeds had been trying all summer to defeat Hendricks in the show ring. And she did just that on Wednesday, but she was in school and did not have the chance to see her 2-year-old take the Jersey grand championship honors.

Steven Dietrich, 14, son of William and Imogene Dietrich, of Lynn Acres Farm, RD 1, Germansville, took the 4-H and Open Holstein Reserve grand championship honors with his junior 2-year-old Monica. As a 2-year-old Monica produced 16,000 lbs with a 520 pound fat test. Her dam is Lynn Acres Colonel Malinda and was Steven's 4-H animal. Monica was sired by Elevation Mark. This prize Holstein is just one of the 400 registered Holsteins at the Lynn Acres Farm. Steven's sister, Stacey, just 7-years old, begged her parents to let her show for the first time and her animal took a first place.

Paul Anderson, judged the 4-H show. Anderson, now retired, was the Penn State University's extension dairy specialist. He devoted much of his efforts to 4-Hers and their projects.

"Family Farm Bill" Would Harm Farmers, Experts Say

ITHACA, N.Y. — Federal legislation nicknamed "The Family Farm Bill" by its proponents could be expected to harm slightly more New York State dairy farmers than it would help, according to three agricultural economists at Cornell University.

Their study indicates that the legislation would reduce the net income of slightly over half of New York State's dairy farmers, while raising the net income of others. The changes in net income could range from declines of 211 percent for small farms that have to purchase most of their feed to increases of more than 400 percent for large farms that can grow most of theirs.

Although the study is based on dairy farms in New York, "These farms are thought to emulate most of the dairy-farm characteristics of the Northeast," said Harry M. Kaiser, an assistant professor of agricultural economics. "They are small farms, and have limited alternatives to dairy farming."

He also noted that, were the proposed legislation to be enacted, the price of milk would be expected to rise "significantly -- perhaps as much as 35 cents a gallon, or 17 percent, and retail prices would rise by 13 percent for cheese, 20 percent for butter and 10 percent for ice cream."

The bill, introduced by Sen. Thomas Harkin (D-Iowa) and Rep. Richard Gephardt (D-Mo.), is being considered by the House and Senate Agriculture committees. The Cornell analysis of the legislation was prepared by Kaiser, graduate student Edward H. Heslop and Associate Professor Robert A. Milligan.

One indication of the magnitude of the problems that generated the legislation under consideration is the activity on the NY FarmNet hotline at Cornell: About 10 to 12 farmers a week are calling the toll-free telephone number for financial, legal and emotional help, according to John R. Brake, FarmNet's director and a professor of agricultural economics at Cornell.

In its 16 months of operation, the state-funded FarmNet program has received more than 1,400 calls from New York farmers, some of whom say that they fear they will have to leave farming.

The Harkin-Gephardt bill would set mandatory production limits on dairy and other major agricultural commodities for every farm in the nation, and would increase the government's price supports for those products in an attempt to raise farmers' income and help family farms survive.

But in most cases, "New York farmers would lose money because they would have to produce less milk and pay higher prices for grain to feed their cattle," Kaiser said. "About 57 percent of all dairy farms in the Northeast would be in that situation."

Basically, the only farms that would benefit from the bill are those that can grow most of the feed for their own cattle, generally larger farms, according to the report. In New York, more than half of the state's 25,000 family farms could be expected to make a smaller profit under the Harkin-Gephardt proposal than they do under current policy, the economists said.

For example, using 1986 figures, the researchers report that dairy farmers would have to cut their production by an average of 14.6 percent under the bill, while the federal government's dairy support would increase 29 percent to $15 per hundredweight of dairy product. But forage costs for farmers who have to buy their cattle feed would increase from 35 percent to 55 percent of their operating expenses.

The result: Net income for small dairy farmers who buy all their cattle feed could drop 211 percent, and large dairy farms that buy feed could see an 84 percent drop in profit.

Farmers who grow their own cattle feed, however, would be "consistently better off under the new plan," the study says. They could see an increase of more than 400 percent in net income, based on the 1986 figures.

Farmers who grow some of their own forage and buy the rest could expect higher income under the bill, according to the three economists.

The size of change in net income would depend on whether farmers reduced their production by cutting their herd size or lowering their output per cow. But the same farms would tend to be gainers or losers in either situation, Kaiser and his colleagues said.

Their findings are based on nine representative farms constructed from data in the Cornell Dairy Farm Business Summary, a census of dairy farms in New York State.

National Appraisal of Resources

The U.S. Department of Agriculture began a 60-day public review of the Second National Appraisal of the soil, water and related resources of the United States on July 13. This is carried out as required by the Soil and Water Resources Conservation Act of 1977 (RCA).

Copies of the report will be available for inspection in county offices of the USDA Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, according to James Olson, state conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service. Summary reports may be requested from the USDA, SCS, Box 985, Federal Building, Harrisburg, PA 17108.

USDA will use this report to update its National Conservation Program which provides direction for all conservation programs conducted by seven USDA agencies.

In this appraisal, USDA analyzed the best data available about land use, soil erosion, water supply and management, water quality and related resource issues such as atmospheric deposition and wildlife habitat. It began new research to define more precisely the threat soil erosion poses to agricultural production and environmental quality. This data will be used to project future conditions as well as identify current problem areas.

According to Olson, Congress enacted RCA legislation in 1977 in response to widespread concern about mounting pressure on the nation's soil and water resources.

Rapidly increasing export demands were encouraging farmers to plow highly erodible land. Erosion problems were growing as farmers began to abandon traditional conservation practices after finding them incompatible with large farm equipment and new farming methods.

Other concerns at the same time were loss of farmland to urbanization, mining of groundwater, water shortages and loss of wildlife habitat.

With these concerns, Congress directed the Secretary to make periodic appraisals of the nation's resources and to ensure that USDA programs were responsive to long-term needs of the nation.

USDA completed the first appraisal in 1980. It was used to design the National Conservation Program which was implemented in 1982. Information from the first appraisal was also used by congress in adopting the conservation provisions of the Food Security Act of 1985, better known as the Farm Bill.

Comments on the second appraisal report should be sent to the State Conservationist, USDA, SCS, Box 985, Federal Building, Harrisburg, PA 17108 by September 12th.

Potter Potato Tour Held

COUDERSPORT (Potter Co.) — Fifty-four farmers and wives from Lehigh County recently toured potato farms and other points of interest in Potter County. The Lehigh County group first toured the Barnett Brothers Farm at Coudersport RD#1, with particular emphasis on the potato fields and how the Barnetts rogue and grow seed. They visited the Kosa Farm at Ulysses next and toured the shop where the Kosa's make some of the equipment used on their potato and dairy farm, as well as examining the storage facilities.

The group arrived back in Coudersport late afternoon where they toured the Potter County Historical Society with members of the society acting as tourguides and answering questions about the artifacts stored there.

The evening meal was at Potato City Motor Inn, Coudersport R.D., where Ron Brenneman of International Paper Company showed slides of Potter County and the wildlife of the area.

The next day the group toured the Irish Farm, Coudersport R.D.#, where they saw a number of variety trails. They then left for the Pennsylvania Lumber Museum where they saw the tools and equipment used in the early logging heyday of Potter County and had lunch served by the Pennsylvania Lumber Museum Associates before department from Lehigh County.

Hi, we're germs.
We're mean, we're unclean,
we infect your poultry,
we cause disease,
we cost you money,
and you're going to try and get rid of us by

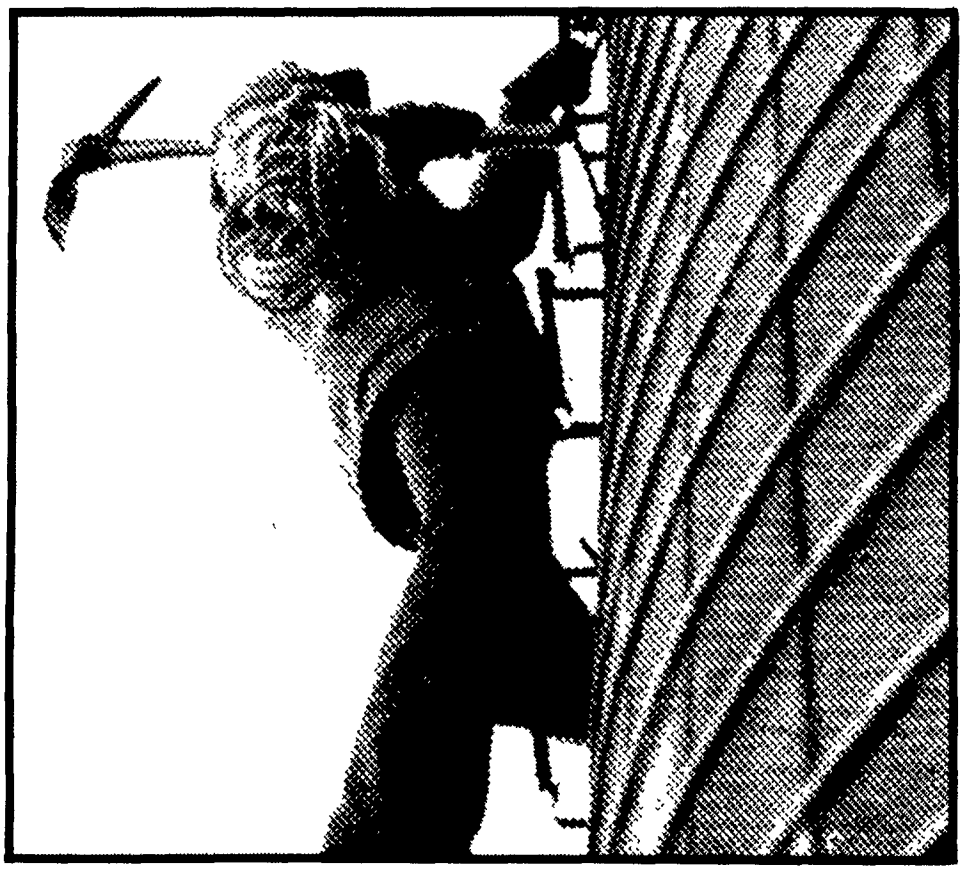
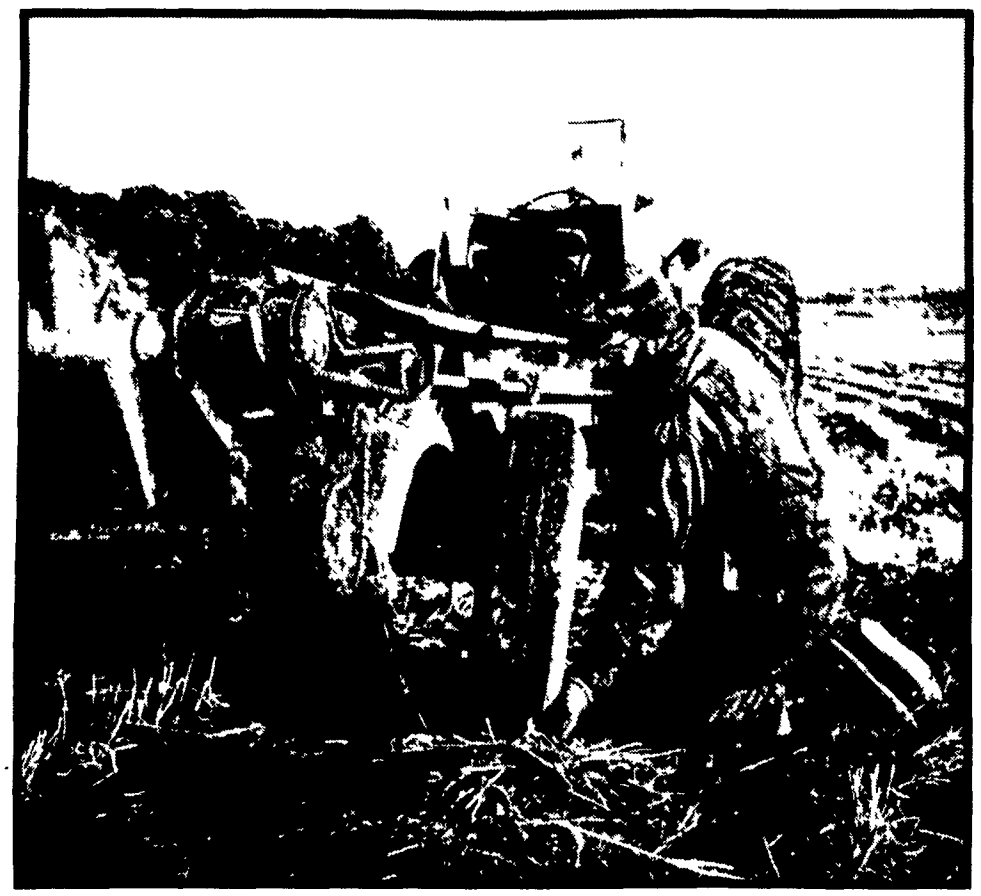
FAMILIAR WINTER SCENES ON YOUR FARM?



Feeding with a Harvestore System sure beats climbing a silo on a cold winter morning to chop frozen silage!



Daily manure hauling can be a cold, offensive job - and things always break at the worst times. It makes more sense to store that manure in a Slurrystore System until you need it!

THEY DON'T HAVE TO BE!

With Penn Jersey's second building crew now in operation, we can erect your Harvestore® or Slurrystore® System in time for fall forage, grain or manure storage!

The results you may achieve with your Harvestore® System depend primarily upon your management skills and may vary from successful results achieved by others Any application to a particular farming operation requires the advice of qualified experts and is subject to limitations of good management, weather and other conditions present at the individual location

We Put More Men In The Field Than The United States Army.

Currently, Uncle Sam keeps around 300,000 army soldiers on active duty.

Farm Credit, on the other hand, helps keep over 2 million farmers on active duty. With more loans for more farming needs than any other lending institution.

For many of you, we've been there from the beginning. With money for land, as well as your house and barn.

We help stock the farm, too. With loans for everything from cows to catfish. Seeds to saplings. Fertilizer to fencing.

And when it's time for a new tractor or pick-up, just call us to get the wheels turning.

Farming has been our only field of interest for seventy years. That's because we're farmers too. Farm Credit is owned and controlled by the same farmers who use its services.

What's more, come rain or shine, we'll stick by you in any kind of weather. And when you think about it, that's reason enough to join our ranks.

FARM CREDIT. A Bank Of Local Farmers.SM

Farm Women Model Fall Fashions

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

ATGLEN — Now that the heat of summer is gone, women's thoughts are turning to fall and to fashion, and Farm Women Society #28 is offering county women the opportunity to learn about the latest fall offerings at a fashion show fundraiser at the Farm and Home Center on Thursday, September 10 at 7:00 p.m.

According to Program Chairman Lois Kolb, the committee wanted to have a fashion show for their own program and then decided to make it their major fundraiser for the year.

Fashions will come from the Country Lane Boutique, owned and operated by Lois Hostetter along Route 11, just east of Octorara High School at Atglen. The 14 models for the show will include five members of the Society, three mothers of members and six daughters of members.

Lois Kolb says, "We will have everything from sportswear and casual wear to very, very dressy clothes." She said all members of the Society are involved in the project, and added, "There is more excitement generated as time goes on."

In addition to the fun of fashions, there will also be refreshments made by the members and door prizes. Proceeds from the show will be used for Society projects which last year included projects like the Women's Health Pavilion at Lancaster General Hospital, the Dairy Princess and Poultry Queen programs, and the state scholarship program. This year they will be contributing to the Make-A-Wish program and the Water Street Rescue Mission.

Coordinator and moderator for the fashion show will be Lois Hostetter, owner of the Country Lane Boutique, a store which features fashions for juniors, misses and half sizes. Lois has operated the store in the basement of her country home for about 12 years. She recalls, "I started very small. My first racks were from Garvin's out-of-business sale."

Opening the store was somewhat a natural for Lois who had managed the gift shop at Plain and Fancy Restaurant for many years. She says, "I had always worked with people, and, though my family sometimes thought I was nuts, I got a lot of support for the idea of a shop."

During her first buying acquisition, a friend, who is a buyer for a large Lancaster clothing store, accompanied Lois to New York. Now, after 12 years, Lois is delighted that salespeople come to her, and she no longer travels to New York to make her purchases. She does attend "fashion marts" in Philadelphia to keep up with the latest trends.

She said, "I carry good quality clothes. I try to carry styles and things local women are looking for. It is moderate to better merchandise."

Lois says her business grows steadily as more people discover her shop's out-of-the-way place. She said because she is not located in a high traffic area like a shopping mall she tries to have a wide selection of merchandise from which people can choose. She adds, "I have a lot to choose from — people can spend hours here." She carries a wide variety of accessories as well, so the shopper can complete an outfit while there.

She says she sometimes considers locating in a shop rather than in her basement, but quickly adds, "I don't want to lose the home touch — the personal touch I can give here." She said she can offer personal service because she and her two helpers know all the merchandise she carries, adding, "We're able to go to the rack and suggest things once we know a person's size needs." She said it's an important service to the customer for sales clerks to know the merchandise because sizes vary greatly from one brand to another.

She adds, "We are honest. If we don't like something on a person, we'll tell them. We want people to look nice. We help them choose what is appropriate for them."

Despite her location, Lois says she has customers from a 60-mile

Lois Kolb, left, program chairman for Society #28, and Lois Hostetter, proprietor of the Country Lane Boutique, look over the program for this Thursday's benefit fashion show at the Farm and Home Center.

Society Member Velma Hess relaxes in the gazebo on a lounge in her straight leg pants made of stretch gabardine fabric and acrylic and wool blend sweater. The sweater features a crew neckline and drop shoulders with side cable stitching and fully embroidered floral motif. She wears a turtle neck dickie under the sweater.

Three generations will be modeling fashions from the Country Lane Boutique on Thursday. Velma Hess, left, is a member of the Society and her daughter Carol Diffenbach and her stepmother Velma Landis will also be modeling.

Society Member Dorothy Kreider, left, is wearing a red and black print dress with a jewel neckline, dolman sleeves, padded shoulders and an A-line, fully flared skirt. The elastic waist is highlighted with a black stretch belt. Donna Rohrer is wearing a three-piece sweater outfit, with a plain, slim skirt with elasticized waist and heather toned stripes in the top and jacket. The cardigan features front pockets and dropped shoulders.

THE MICRO WAY

LANI BLOOMER

Here's a collection of free nicrowave booklets and leaflets hat I've enjoyed using. Also ncluded are the names of two inexpensive microwave newsletters that are my favorites.

First the newsletters: These two newsletters are both worth getting and do not duplicate each other. They're published every other month. The recipes are good tasting and reliable. Both are printed in booklet format, on 8½ x11 paper and punched with three holes (will fit standard ring binders) to save your copies. Neither carries any advertising.

THE MICROWAVE TIMES, by Janet Sadlack of Recipes Unlimited, is 16 pages of microwave (only) recipes, articles, hints and tips. Cost is $8.95 per year (6 issues). Make checks payable to Recipes Unlimited and order from: The Microwave Times, Box 1271, Burnsville, MN 55337.

A BATCH OF IDEAS, by Joyce Battcher is 8 pages of short articles featuring quick country-style cooking. There are microwave, conventional, and food processor recipes, plus hints, tips, etc. Cost is $6.95 per year (6 issues). Make checks payable and mail orders to: "A Batch of Ideas" R.R.2 Box 162, Gaylord, MN 55334.

Write for single copies of the following free leaflets and booklets. If you want extra copies, write and ask for prices on quantities:

-- TAKE THE CAKE WITH PILLSBURY CAKE MIX is a leaflet with a 25 cents-off coupon, three recipes, and other tips for Pillsbury's new Microwave Cake Mix. (The pineapple upside down cake is great!) Send your name, address and zip code to: Pillsbury Microwave Cake Mix Recipes, Pillsbury Company, Pillsbury Center--M.S. 2891, Minneapolis, MN 55402.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Days, weeks, months go by during which we pay little note hereabouts to the marvelous innovative improvements which add to the quality of life in general about the farmstead.

It was the orange plastic baling twine which stirred this philosophical reflection. Not that plastic twine is new. It's just new here.

The traditional sisal or hemp -- or whatever it's made from -- has always been the baling twine of preference of The Farmer. However, initial orders of twine don't completely wrap up this hay baling season, and we went looking for emergency supplies. What came home was the orange plastic.

While the orange plastic stuff lacks the asethetic, all-natural appeal of the more familiar tan, fiber twine, it boasts qualities otherwise lacking in non-synthetics. A thread of bright orange has far greater visibility than one of beige, when buried in a pile of similarly-hued straw, for instance. This takes on some signifigance when you forgot to throw down heifer bedding, twilight is descending, and nary a string can been seen in the semi-dark confines of a barn.

Then, too, plastic is no doubt more durable than fiber when exposed to the weather. For actual bale storage use here, weather durability is no big deal, since bales go into covered mows.

Instead, it's for all those extra-curricular uses for baling twine in which plastic's durability wins points. Like tying pasture gates together or shut - or open, or weaving "temporary" repairs in fencing breaks. Pounding rain, blankets of snow, harsh, drying winds and baking sunshine do less damage perhaps to plastic than to fiber. We shall all rejoice over more firmly twine-anchored gates and fences. Except maybe for Holly the Heifer, whose 1 a.m. neighborhood explorations may be more effectively halted.

As substitute neckchains for those cows which slip and break their links on a continuing basis, plastic promises less frequent fashioning of stall tiedowns from twine lengths.

On the negative side, cut ends of plastic twine unravel and fray much more readily than fiber. A flock of kittens playing with a couple of plastic strings can reduce them to shreds with far greater efficiency. By spring, we'll no doubt have a whole new wave of environmental decoration, birds' nests woven and artistically decorated with shredded bits of orange twine.

Along the same line of ag technological improvement is the woven plastic feed bag, adding a space age synthetic twist to the classic method of feed delivery. Of course, while a great majority of feed is now handled via bulk bin method, smaller batches still keep feed firms brown or beige, bagging it.

These, too, have proven a boon for impromptu farm improvements. With one side and the bottom of a plastic feed bag slit open, you have a usable piece of durable material about a yard square. This size just fits some of the windows in our young stock pens. Stretched over a simple wood frame, plastic feedbag remnants are a perfect storm window: lightweight, easily installed and removed by even a non-mechanical farm wife. And cheap.

A plastic feedbag use list is limited only by the imagination: quickie tractor seat cover for damp mornings, water-resistant, heat-retaining blanket for a chilled calf, and, folded together, a cozy cushion for sitting on scratchy bales. Tomatoes ripen well under them, cats like to sleep on top of them, and, tied shut with the original feed bag string, garbage holds well inside of them. And they are dog--and-cat-damage resistant.

Purists who remember uses for real cloth feedbags are no doubt shuddering. Plastic replacements are absolutely useless for stitching into housedresses, pieced quilts, rag rugs or dish-drying cloths. And they've rendered the term "burlap bag" obsolete, relegated to language history with the likes of "shoe button hook," "butter paddle" and "goose grease."

Sociologists have long lamented our becoming a "plastic society."

But, never let it be said that farmers aren't right up there on the cutting edge. Even in the plastic revolution.

Perk Up Packed Lunches

A new school year signals the start of morning rush hour in many households. The kitchen is often the scene of family traffic jams as students gobble down on-the-run breakfasts while mothers hastily pack lunches. To put an end to some of the morning confusion and to meet the challenge of creative, nutritious lunches, here are some suggestions:

—Create a packed lunch menu that allows you to shop and plan ahead for supplies. This enables you to incorporate supermarket specials, leftovers and foods from the freezer into tempting, well-balanced box lunches.

—Spread butter or mayonnaise right up to the edges on both slices of bread to prevent sandwich fillings from seeping through and jellies and jams from "weeping."

—Spread bread slices or buns on the countertop and, using a large spoon, spread the mayonnaise. Then fill the sandwiches assembly line fashion.

—Stack sandwiches and cut all at one time.

—Make sandwiches ahead and freeze. Frozen items will thaw in time for lunch. Pack separate bags of tomatoes, lettuce and other garnishes to add at lunch time.

—Pack chips, cookies and other snack items one week in advance then store baked items in the freezer and salty snacks in an air-tight container.

—Fresh fruit that needs no preparation except washing makes preparation easy. Not only does it save time but fruit is more nutritious than other desserts. When fresh fruit is hard to find, try dried fruit. Some mothers ask how those prepackaged fruit rolls compare with dried fruit. Fruit rolls are higher in sugar and low in other nutrients. A recent issue of "Nutrition Action Healthletter" sums up the situation by saying: "Fruit rolls are to dried fruit what American cheese food is to cheddar."

Now that you know all these hints, you'll want some new ideas for lunch box specials. When noontime rolls around, the sandwich still rules supreme. But finding the same old thing day after day is likely to turn off even the most easily satisfied eater. Here's a new idea for sandwich lovers:

Loaf-In-A-Round

To make this hearty sandwich, cook meatloaf formed in the same size as a large round loaf of French bread. Slice bread in half horizontally. Pull out soft center from each half, leaving walls ½—1-inch thick. Make bread crumbs from bread that has been removed and use in your meatloaf recipe or save for another use. After the meat has cooked, stuff it into the hollowed-out bread load and weigh the load down with a plate or heavy object. This forces the meat's juices into the bread which helps it hang together. Cool loaf at least 20 minutes before cutting. Freeze in sandwich portions for easy morning packing.

YUMMY GRAHAM CRACKER BARS

½ cup butter, melted
2 cups firmly packed brown sugar
2 cups graham cracker crumbs
2 cups flaked coconut
½ cup milk
36 (2½-inch squares) graham crackers
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese
2 tablespoon butter
½ teaspoon vanilla
1½ to 1¾ powdered sugar

Heat and mix butter, brown sugar, graham cracker crumbs, coconut and milk together.

Arrange whole graham crackers in a single layer to cover bottom of 9x13 pan. When coconut filling is thick, spread quickly over whole graham crackers. Top with remaining whole crackers, pressing them lightly into coconut filling. Cool.

Soften cream cheese. Stir in butter and milk. Stir in powdered sugar until it makes a thick, smooth frosting. Frost bars. Cut into bars and freeze until ready to pack lunches.

CARROT-OATMEAL BARS

2 cups grated carrots
½ cup butter
½ molasses
½ cup sugar
2 eggs
½ cup dry milk powder
½ water
1 cup rolled oats
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ nutmeg
2 tablespoon orange juice (optional)
1 tablespoon grated orange rind (optional)
1 cup raisins or broken nuts (optional)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Wash, scrub and grate carrots. Combine butter, sugar, carrots, eggs, dry milk, water and rolled oats. Beat well. Add remainder of ingredients. Bake 30 minutes. Let cool before storing in an air-tight container.

Lunch packers will love this sandwich. Make it ahead and freeze for easy lunch packing. Look for the recipe, Loaf-In-A-Round, in this section.

Ed Potter, Certified Culinary Chef, from Stewartstown, demonstrated to 800 Ag Progress visitors each day. Potter made quick and tantalizing beef, veal and pork entrees which were then sampled by the crowd.

"You don't have to be a professional chef to make delicious and interesting meals," according to Ed Potter at the "Meating Place" red meat exhibit at Ag Progress Days, Rock Springs in August.

Thousands of visitors converged on the "Meating Place" where Potter, a Certified Culinary Chef and Certified Culinary Educator transformed light pink to bright cherry red meats into tantalizing entrees.

Sizzling cajun and delicate herb fragrances mingled with the mouth watering smells of beef, pork, lamb and veal during the three-day show. Potter demonstrated just how easy the new cooking methods and recipes are . . . even for the novice.

The featured recipe was prepared at "The Meating Place" by Ed Patter.

Farm Women Model Fashions

radius. She likes having the shop in her home because if weather is bad and business is slow, she can find other around-the-house chores to do.

Her fashion shows are a spring and fall venture for her that requires a lot of time and effort, but she adds, "The shows are the best advertising." Sometimes it takes a year for a fashion show guest to return, but Lois still considers the shows as effective publicity. The only other advertising she does is in local papers. The rest of her business comes from word-of-mouth satisfied customers.

Lois does all her fashion shows with service organizations using their own models. She said, "The models come here and choose what they want to wear. I want them to choose what they would buy, so they are comfortable. We also choose accessories."

Once the clothes are selected, the work begins for Lois. She must press clothing, take off price tags, and write up the narration about the outfit. Occasionally she will tape up the hem of pants to make the length right, but she never changes the length of dresses for a show. She said, "It takes organization. I must label everyone's clothes for the show."

A change she has observed during her years of business is that people are now willing "to pay a little more" for clothing. "They may choose not to have as many," Lois remarks.

Lois says the hardest part of purchasing is choosing the right colors. "I stay conservative with styles but neutral colors don't go. I try to have colors that are flattering for women." For fall Lois thinks plums, greens and the traditional earth tones will be popular.

As for the prediction that skirts will be shorter, Lois says, "No, skirts will not be shorter. Whatever length people are comfortable with is good — they go from right below the knee to ankle length." She believes two-piece sweater dressing will be a "very big look for fall."

She said her purchases are made on intuition, and "knowing my women customers."

One nice convenience for men accompanying their wives to the store is a lovely, large gazebo located in a beautifully landscaped garden. With a view of the surrounding countryside, visitors can comfortably enjoy waiting through the hours of clothes shopping.

The fashion show for Farm Women Society #28 is the first of the season for Lois, so participants will have the first look at new fall items. Tickets cost $2.50 and are available from any Society member or from Lois Kolb (397-5538) or Ruth Bare (394-0135).

Society Member Dorothy Kreider relaxes in a black and red jumpsuit with a camisole bodice. The long, three quarter length striped jacket features lapels, side slits and contrasting cuffs. The polyester crepe dress is easy care and wear.

Carol Diffenbach, daughter of Society member Velma Hess, is wearing a two-piece sweater dress with a straight skirt and pullover top with white cowl neckline. The front bodice is accented with leather applique and has wide ribbed hip band.

Wall Coverings Mask Blemishes

Many architectural flaws can be masked by distracting the eye. Wallcoverings are an excellent way to do it. According to Maryetta Dorricott, Delaware County Cooperative Extension Home Economist, strong vertical stripes in a shade darker than the ceiling can add height to a room; a dark wallcovering on the ceiling with light-colored walls can lower a high ceiling.

Life On The Farm

Manheim, (Lancaster Co.) — Eleven-year-old Dwight Lehman helps his dad on their 100 acre farm.

"I don't ever want to move off the farm," Dwight says. "I want to be a farmer when I grow up and farm this same place."

During the summer, Dwight helps milk their 85 cows and care for their 500 hogs. When school begins Dwight will only help with milking the cows one evening a week, but he is responsible to see that his 30 chickens get feed and water each day. And he has 15 rabbits and 6 calves to feed.

Best of all the farm chores, Dwight likes driving tractor especially when they fill their silo. In his spare-time he enjoys driving his go-cart, fishing in a near-by creek and practicing shooting with his B B gun and archery set.

Some days, Dwight enjoys helping his uncle in his woodworking business. Dwight has learned to plane lumber, that means to shave off wood to make the boards more narrow. Evidently, Dwight is learning how to be a good carpenter because he received a blue ribbon in 4-H for the candle scone he made.

Dwight has two sisters, LaVonne, 13; and Pam, 8. They like working on the farm too. LaVonne has three horses and Pam has a bunch of kittens to feed. All of them enjoy living on their Manheim farm with their parents Dennis and Karen Lehman.

Everyday Dwight feeds and gives water to his 30 chicken's.

This calf is growing fat since Dwight bottle-feeds him. With the money he makes from raising calves, Dwight plans to buy a bike.

Christiana Keener Promotes Lamb Products

CHAMBERSBURG — Christiana Keener of Chambersburg was crowned 1988 Franklin County Lamb and Wool Queen August 27 at the Franklin County Extension Office. Christiana, 16, is the daughter of Mark and Elisabeth Keener. Kelly Boyd, 14, was selected as Princess. She is the daughter of Gary and Donna Boyd, Chambersburg.

The four contestants had to answer several questions about the lamb and wool industry asked by emcee Scott Smith. When asked what she would call someone who thinks lamb tastes and smells terrible, Christiana replied that the offending meat was probably grass-fed Australian mutton. American lamb is grain-fed, she noted. "Our job is to teach people what American lamb tastes like," she added.

She was also asked about the advantages of buying a sweater made of real wool rather than a less expensive one made of synthetics. "A wool sweater will stay pretty," she said, "while the synthetic will fade. A wool sweater is a good investment -- it will last a lifetime."

The goals of the American Sheep Producers Council, Christiana told the audience, are to promote lamb and wool through posters, radio, and magazines, and to provide profitability for the farmers.

Christiana is a junior at Chambersburg Area Senior High School where she is enrolled in the accelerated college preparatory program. She is a member of the Franklin County 4-H Shepherds and the 4-H Nimble Spindles.

Princess Kelly Boyd is a ninth grader at J. Frank Faust Junior High School in the college preparatory program. She is a member of the Franklin County 4-H Shepherds and the Franklin County Seeing Eye Puppy Club. She recently took part in a Seeing Eye puppy demonstration at Penn State, where she won a blue ribbon.

Kelly gave the audience some suggestions on using cuts from the front of the lamb. Cubes can be used for shish kabobs, she said, ground lamb can be used to make lamb-burgers, and shoulder cuts can be roasted.

Advantages of a wool sweater over a synthetic, according to Kelly are: wool is cool in summer and warm in winter, is naturally fire resistant and water repellant, and holds dye well.

Christiana and Kelly were crowned by Heather Fusting, 1987 Franklin County Lamb and Wool Queen. During her reign, Heather attended banquets with other commodity queens, rode in a Fourth of July parade, and handed out sample of lamb at the Franklin County Fair. She also took a lamb to the Waterwheel Day Care to teach the children about lamb and wool products. At five local senior centers she made speeches and gave out samples of lamb and wool. Heather is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fusting, St. Thomas.

The contest was open to any girl in Franklin County who has a 4-H or FFA lamb or wool project, or whose parents are involved in any manner with the lamb and wool industry. Contestants were judged on appearance (10 points), poise and personality (20 points), knowledge of the lamb and wool industry (35 points) and speaking ability (35 points).

Emcee Scott Smith officiated for the third year. A retail appliance salesman, he emcees the Shippensburg Fair and the Cumberland County Dairy Princess pageant.

Judges were Charlotte Rhine, Orrstown; Mary Beth Fishel, Shippensburg; and Kathleen Cramer, Chambersburg.

Other contestants were Gretchen Schoenberg, Shippensburg, daughter of Kenneth and Rebecca Schoenberg, and Rachel Cody, Spring Run, daughter of Robert and Elisabeth Cody.

1987 Franklin County Lamb and Wool Queen Heather Fusting, Right, crowns 1988 queen, Christiana Keener.

Have You Heard?

By Doris Thomas

Lancaster Extension Home Economist

What Does Water Cost

Water plays an important part in our everyday activities. We drink it, cook with it and use it to clean our homes. Water is used in the production and processing of food and to manufacture most other items we buy. Away from home, we consume water at work, school and when we travel.

How much does water cost us? Studies of prices paid by households receiving water from public water suppliers have revealed that water is the least expensive utility. The average water bill for a household in Pennsylvania is about $12.75 per month. In other words, it is possible to purchase a whole day's supply for a family of four (approximately 255 gallons) for 42 cents. This is equivalent to about one tenth of a cent per gallon.

Water Use In The Home

Where is water used in the home? Almost 75% of total household water consumption occurs in the bathroom. Every day the average person uses 25 gallons for toilet flushing and 22 gallons in the shower, bath and bathroom sink. Water for cleaning purposes, such as dishwashing, laundry and housecleaning, amounts to about 14 gallons per individual each day. As far as water for cooking and drinking, a typical person uses about 3 gallons of water in preparing food and for drinking each day.

Water is not as pure as many of us once thought. Unacceptable levels of bacteria and other waterborne pathogens have been found in many private and public water supplies. The use of advanced analytical methods for testing water has alerted us of the presence of very minute amounts of toxic chemicals, such as pesticides, in drinking water.

As people have become aware of instances of drinking water contamination, they have become more concerned about the safety of their own water supplies. One consequence has been expanded expenditures by consumers to obtain high-quality water.

One way consumers have sought to obtain cleaner water is by purchasing bottled water. Sales of bottled water have been rapidly increasing. Since 1980, bottled water sales in the U.S. have increased at about 15 percent per year. According to the International Bottled Water Association, sales exceeded over 1 billion dollars in 1985. About 80 percent of bottled water sales were to residential customers who either received deliveries directly to their homes or purchased it at grocery stores.

Consumers have also attempted to obtain higher-quality water by purchasing home, or point-of-use, water treatment devices. Last year, U.S. consumers spent about $175 million for equipment, supplies, and services to improve the quality of drinking water in their homes.

Waynesburg Girl Wins Quarter Horse

UNIVERSITY PARK — Susan Mawhinney, Waynesburg, has been named the Pennsylvania winner of a Quarter Horse from Bob Evans Farms Inc., of Ohio, for her outstanding achievement in the 4-H Horse Program.

Susan and her family were invited to attend the Bob Evans 4-H Fall Roundup September 11-13 at the Bob Evans Farm in Rio Grande, Ohio. Also invited were the award winners from Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Maryland, Delaware, Missouri, Tennessee, Georgia and West Virginia.

Susan is a seven-year member of 4-H. The daughter of Michael and Janet Mawhinney, she is a freshman in high school. She plans to attend college and major in architecture. Susan also hopes to continue in 4-H, show a successful horse project and a flock of registered Dorsets.

Susan has completed projects in horse, lambs, steers, swine, sheep breeding and livestock judging. She currently serves as a teen leader, and helps new club members with their projects.

"Providing good quality colts to 4-H members who show outstanding qualities of leadership is our way of expressing appreciation for the fine work of the 4-H programs," says Bob Evans, president of the company.

Carroll Howes, associate 4-H program leader at Penn State University, says, "Bob Evans was raised on a farm and understands the role of the family farmer as one of the chief contributions to the American economy. Through his activities he has supported the efforts of young people interested in agriculture."

Ed and Paulie Drexler, left, chat with John and Colleene Werbela of Nelson, N.Y., before the Werbelas took off on a quick weekend cruise off Long Island. The Drexlers believe they are the nation's first farm sitters.

Sitters For Vacationing Farmers

ITHACA, N.Y. — It's easy to find someone to water your geranium and feed your dog while you're on vacation. But what if you also have 300 acres of crops and 100 cows on a modern farm with complex milking equipment, an array of machinery, computerized feed formulas and other high-tech wonders?

When bad luck drove Ed and Paulie Drexler out of dairy farming two years ago, they remembered the trouble they had finding someone to mind their farm when they were taking a trip in 1980. So they began a new and successful career: "farm-sitting," that is, doing the daily chores for vacationing farmers.

The young couple, who live in a house they built on 54 wooded acres in the town of Fabius near Syracuse, believe that their occupation is unique. "As far as we can tell, no one else has ever heard of anyone doing what we do as a profession," Ed Drexler said. "Farmers might be able to get help from neighbors for a short period of time, but it's tough to find someone who could fill the void for a week or two."

Since the Drexlers became farm sitters one and a half years ago, they have worked on numerous farms in most of the northeastern states.

"We will milk in Tahiti if someone there pays our air fare," Paulie Drexler quipped in an interview. "Seriously, we go anywhere."

Their business is booming. They are booked solid this summer and fall, and February 1988 already has been taken, too. Many people make reservations months and even a year in advance, Ed Drexler said.

The Drexlers said that they draw deep satisfaction from helping many farmers to make a much needed escape from their grinding daily chores. "Every time the phone rings, it's exciting because we know somebody out there needs us, and we try to schedule our time to help them get away," Ed Drexler said. "When we arrive at a farm, we get comments such as 'Where have you been the past 20 years?'"

Paulie Drexler said another reason they love farm-sitting is that "it's never boring," because they work at different farms.

The Drexlers are graduates of Cornell University, where they majored in animal science. When Ed Drexler graduated in 1974, he went back to his family farm in Smyrna in Chenango County, where he was in partnership with his father. Paulie Drexler joined him a year later when she graduated from Cornell.

The partnership didn't work out well. So the Drexells decided to leave the family farm. For a while, they worked in Altamont near Albany as rural real estate agents, selling hobby farms for city people who wanted to live in rural areas.

Selling hobby farms was an interesting job, but "we missed cows," he said. In 1978, they bought their first farm — with 62 cows and 200 acres of crop land — in St. Johnsville in Montgomery County.

The farm thrived. Within 18 months, the Drexlers boosted their herd's average annual milk production from 14,000 pounds to 18,000. Their herd was designated the most improved in Montgomery County for 1980. The Drexlers also were named as New York Farm Bureau's Outstanding Young Farmers that year.

But because of its poor soil quality, they sold the farm in 1981 and moved to Pompey near Syracuse, where they bought a farm with 165 cows and more than 600 acres of cropland.

As they began expanding the herd, they ran into "a brick wall," as Ed Drexler described it. Some of the cows they had bought in Ohio were found to have Johne's disease, a bacterial infection that causes a chronic diarrhea fatal to afflicted animals.

From then on, it was a losing battle. "Within six months after we had bought 37 cows, we lost 27," Ed Drexler said. "Eventually, we had to send every one of our 185 cows to the slaughterhouse for beef."

Although the Farm Home Administration made a generous offer to help them rebuild their herd, the couple decided to call it quits. "A fight against a disease like that takes all your pizzazz out of you," Ed Drexler said. "So we were right back to square one."

They sold the farm in August 1985 and moved into a house they built that summer. They limped along that fall by selling Christmas trees and firewood from their property.

That was when the Drexlers came up with the idea of farm-sitting. In February 1986, they attended a farm show in Syracuse, where they handed out mimeographed copies of a simple brochure explaining their farm-sitter service. "Right off the bat, we got two bookings. That astonished us," Paulie Drexler said.

The business soon brought in more jobs than they could handle. "The first year, we were turning down about five to six jobs for every one we could take," Ed Drexler said. "This year, we are booked 100 percent from the last week of June to almost Christmas."

Their going rate is $100 per person per weekday and $125 on Saturdays and Sundays. It's $12 an hour if the job involves only temporary field work.

"If everything goes okay on a farm, anybody can come in and do it, but that isn't the case. Those who hire us are paying for insurance — the unexpected, not the routine work," Ed Drexler said.

On one occasion, for example, silos ran out of feed for the dairy animals. "The feeding program got shot to heck," Paulie Drexler recalled. "We had to use what knowledge we had and come up with a balanced ration fast; we had to readjust, among other things, protein levels for individual cows. When the owner came back, he found out that we were producing as much milk as when he had left. The bulk tank never lost a pound of milk," she said.

Farmers who have hired the Drexlers as farm sitters are happy with the quality of their work. Bill and Marilyn Bird of Asbury, N.J., wrote: "Everything was great. We can't think of any way to improve." A New York farmer, Stanley Connelly of Virgil, commented, "We were pleased with your services. The corn is coming along fine now. You helped a lot."

Some of the agricultural agents of Cornell Cooperative Extension are enthusiastic about the farm-sitter service, too. Kathryn A. Daxendell, a dairy agent with Cooperative Extension of Onondaga County, called the farm-sitting a "fabulous idea," saying that farmers need people who are competent to run their farms while they

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

During our tour of Alaska we stayed in many nice hotels. But at 5:30 a.m. or 6:30 a.m., depending on the day's plans, our telephone rang to start us on another busy day. We drove over half of the Alaskan Highway and it was so bumpy that several people felt quite sick.

When we left Anchorage, we stopped at Earthquake Park and saw some of the damage caused in 1964 when the land dropped 40 feet. Nearby was the largest float plane airport in the world. Many places are only accessible by plane and so many families own their own plane as there is plenty of water to land them.

One unusual sight was cemeteries that have small, brightly painted houses as markers. They are called "spirit houses" and each contains small holes for the spirit to escape.

We stopped at the experimental dairy farm of the University of Alaska and saw their 40 year-old milk parlor. Here they can grow 80 pound cabbages and also good potato crops of 50 ton per acre. In the whole state of Alaska there are less than 20 dairies as milk can be brought from Washington cheaper than produced here. Our lunch was served in a large log building on a nearby farm.

Our five-hour bus ride to Denali National Park was through rain and drizzle. This park has six-million acres and it contains 20,320 foot Mt. McKinley. Shortly after six the next morning we were on a bus for a Wildlife Tour of the park as cars are not allowed on the gravel roads. We were lucky to see some 70 Dall sheep, lots of caribou and grizzly bears with cubs as we drove 60 miles into the wilderness.

That evening we were in Fairbanks which is only 140 miles from the Artic Circle. On the way we stopped at Nanana which is a supply center for 183 other communities which have only the river to get their supplies. Here they have a big jackpot that is given to the person who can predict the exact day, hour and minute that the ice will breakup in the spring. The temperature ranges from 77 degrees below zero to 103 degrees. Many big dog mushers live in this frigid community and train their dogs for the Yukon race.

are away.

Craig D. Trowbridge, also a dairy agent with Cooperative Extension of Jefferson County, said that he had heard about such a service. "Farming is a stressful occupation, and farmers, like anyone else, do need a break once in a while," he said.

The idea of farm sitting was new to agricultural agent Bruce P. Tillapaugh, who specializes in field crops management for Wyoming and Erie counties. Many farmers, particularly those with small operations, can use such a service, he said. "Small farmers usually don't get away because they have to do chores themselves," he said.

"Generally, farmers are apprehensive about leaving their farms to a stranger who is not well qualified to run their farms. They must have a faith in the people they hire."

The Drexlers said that most of their clients are owners of small family dairy farms which, unlike large ones, usually don't have any extra help. Usually the farmers hiring the Drexlers want to get away on vacation. Some want to attend special events such as weddings, graduations, family reunions, conventions and farm shows.

The Drexlers want to farm-sit for up to two weeks on a job. "We have a job that's coming up this summer involving three weeks of our service, but this is a special situation," Ed Drexler said. "We have been to this particular farm several times, and the farmer has become a good friend."

When two of their three children are out of school, the Drexler family travels together and moves right into the house of the farmer who hires them. "We have a camper, but we soon found out that the farmers wanted us to stay in their homes. We take care of everything, including watering plants and feeding cats and dogs," Ed Drexler said.

Proper Watering For Optimum Plant Growth

Proper watering of home landscape and garden plants is one of the most misunderstood aspects of gardening for the average homeowner. It is important to realize that you can over-water and cause as much damage as under-watering. If plants are water-stressed from either excess or deficiency their quality decreases. In a vegetable garden, this can reduce the total potential harvest.

The pore spaces in a soil are either filled with water or air. Oxygen in the soil is necessary for plant roots to survive. Watering too often or too much forces the air from the pore spaces and the root system dies. Plant parts above ground then exhibit stress symptoms such as wilting, yellowing, and drying foliage from the lack of water entering the plant.

Too little water, on the other hand, does not allow the roots to replace water that has been lost through transpiration from the foliage. The roots may dry up and die, and the top growth begins to show similar symptoms as caused by over-watering.

According to Betty Styer, Chester County Extension Horticulturist, it is much easier to over-water heavy clay soil than light-textured sandy soil. Light sandy soils tend to dry out quickly and are frequently not watered enough to maintain the plants.

Light soils do allow for deeper and faster penetration of the water but also dry out faster. Heavy soils are slower to allow water penetration but also dry out much more slowly.

Gardeners frequently ask how often a garden or landscape needs to be watered. Unfortunately there is no specific answer because each instance will be different. The type of soil, exposure, amount of rainfall, organic content of the soil, and the plants themselves all play a part in the amount of available water in the soil. A good rule-of-thumb to follow in watering plants is to fill the entire root zone with water, and then allow the soil to dry out partially before the next water application.

Large trees and established shrub beds can be allowed to dry several inches down in the soil before rewatering. A small or newly established plant or those with very shallow root systems will need watering before very much soil drying occurs. A layer of loose mulch over the soil surface will be very helpful in these instances with shallow roots. Gardeners should become familiar with the characteristics of the plants and soils on their property so they can provide optimum growing conditions.

In many regions and communities water conservation is becoming an important issue. The wise use of water will help save this important natural resource. Water only when the soil is dry, and apply the water slow enough to allow for adequate penetration. As soon as run-off is observed stop watering or reduce the flow of water to the area.

Mulches over the soil surface will also reduce the amount of soil moisture lost through evaporation into the air. It will maintain a cooler soil temperature and prevent erosion from rainfall or irrigation water.

Pillow Talk

MEDIA — If you're buying new bed pillows, there are certain tips you'll want to keep in mind. Pillows are available in a wide range of fillings and sizes so you should consider how you want to sleep and what size bed you have.

There is no perfect bed pillow for everyone, notes Maryetta Dorricott, Delaware County Cooperative Extension Home Economist. A pillow that will give you many years of comfortable sleep may keep someone else tossing and turning. Ideally, everyone should select his own pillow, but if you're buying pillows for your family, you should check with them to find out their preferences.

Before you buy a pillow, you should test it. Pick it up and feel it with your hand to see if it is comfortable. If you're buying a pillow for someone else, ask the salesperson if it is soft, medium or firm. A good pillow should be resilient and free of lumps and odors, regardless of its filling. Check the label on the pillow to see what filling it contains.

The softest and most luxurious pillows are filled entirely with down, the soft shaftless fluffs from the breasts of geese and ducks. For people who prefer their pillows firmer, select a pillow filled with a blend of down and feathers. The more feathers in the blend, the firmer the pillow.

Grain drying quality

Shivvers automatic continuous flow grain drying systems eliminate the over-drying often caused by slow stirring devices. The Shivvers' secret is the tapered sweep auger which rotates around the drying bin, removing even layers of dried grain, assuring the removal of uniformly dried grain. For a better way to dry grain, see your Shivvers dealer.

Students Explore Ag Research

BY LOU ANN GOOD

Lancaster County — Sixty-five Pennsylvania high-school students attended the Pennsylvania Governor's School for Agriculture at Penn State.

This opportunity affords honor students with high achievements and leadership skills to explore their agriculture interests by independent research.

The two students featured in this article are representative of the quality of students who received this pretigious opportunity. Seventeen-year-old Jim Shirk, East Earl, and Robin Weiss, a Manheim Central senior, count the five-week study as a highlight of their life.

The excitment of research broadened the perspective of these top-notch students. They learned not only about numerous ag-related careers but also how to fit the right career with their personalities. They benefitted from meeting professors from the college and the close working relationship they had with them. Jim said, "College experience gave us a good dose of what I can expect as a fulltime college student majoring in engineering. It's designed for individual super exposure."

According to Bob Lauffer, Garden Spot Ag teacher, applicants must be top students, write essays on why they are interested in pursuing their field of study and show leadership ability in activities. These qualifications must be accompanied by letters of recommendations by three of the student's teachers. Sixty-five students are then chosen from hundreds of applicants.

Jim, son of William and Cathryn Shirk of East Earl, is a Red Rose Star farmer and a senior at Garden Spot High School. He was amazed that some students were sharp academically but showed no common sense in agriculturally related subjects because they weren't fortunate to have ag classes at school.

The seventeen-year-old Garden Spot senior leads his class in academic achievement with a 3.989 grade average.

Jim and parents feel that Jim has been instrumental in helping overcome a lot of academic snobbery in the school system. His mother explained that when Jim first decided to enter the FFA program in ninth grade, teachers told him, "You're too smart to take ag."

But Jim's FFA teacher, Bob Lauffer, protested "If ag cannot attract top students, we're in trouble," Lauffer said. "Ag is as technical in nature as any other occupation."

The Shirks who recently acquired Jim's grandfather's 66 acre Silver Valley Farm, consider themselves more hobby farmers than career farmers. They grow corn, wheat, soybeans, and alfafa and usually Jim raises 20 head of steers.

Jim considers himself lucky to benefit from Garden Spot's strong ag program. The school offers two different programs in production agriculture which concentrates on studying crops and farming techniques and in environment agriculture which focuses on soil, conservation and wildlife.

Jim has completed three years of environmental ag and will take the production part during his senior year.

All the projects Jim has completed qualifies him to apply for three separate national FFA proficiency awards. Since the Shirks have remodeled their farmstead and updated their farm operation, Jim will use his input into those changes as qualifications for the Home and Farmstead Approval awards. Also, Jim had all their land put in contours which qualifies him for the Conservation Management awards. Currently, Jim with the help of his ag teacher and Rutt's Custom Kitchens, a business that borders the Shirks acreage, are putting in a pond to help manage soil and water problems. Jim's planning in the pond project should help him win a Soil and Water Management awards.

Jim is lavish with his praise of the week-long conservation schools he attended both at county and state levels. Next summer, he is scheduled to serve as counselor at the state conservation camp.

Mrs. Shirk laughs as she reviews their oldest son Jim's accomplishments. "I wanted him to be well-rounded," she said, "but I didn't know he would go to the extent he has." "He's educated a lot of people that you can be an ag student, maintain top grades and excel in music, acting, and numerous academic achievements.

Jim has served as second student advisor, vice-president and president of Environmental aga and this year he is president of production ag. He sings first bass in chorus, second base in orchestra and played the lead role in Garden Spot's Production of "Fiddler on the Roof." He belongs to the National Honor Society and is listed in "Who's Who Among High School Students." He plays varsity baseball, is a chess club member, active in his church youth group, and president of an Explorer's Post.

Jim admits he has tried about everything but still likes ag best. "I like to spread myself thin," he admitted. "I haven't found anything I can't do yet."

But there is one thing Jim did not enjoy doing at the five week summer session. "I had to do my own laundry," he complained. "I made sure that I took enough clothing along so that I needed to wash only twice during the five weeks I was there."

Although Jim believes it's important to do a lot of things, he stresses that students should "put their energy where interests are. I would not take a desk job except if necessary to keep organized."

Since Jim shares a wide spectrum of interest, he found some of his specialty classes in genetics and in utilized new and environmentally safe approach to pest control conflicted time-wise with the required core classes.

As his required project at the Governor's school, Jim researched "The Designing of an Anaerobic Digester for a Small Cattle Farm." He explained that he designed a biogas engine that takes manure from the farm and utilizes or breaks down the menthane gas to produce electricity. Jim admitted, his experiment would not be financially practical for their family's operation but that it would work for a larger farming operation where odor was a problem to the community. Jim said that his theory may help the Chesapeake Bay's polution problems but that it will not solve them. He said, "The manure coming out of the digestor was practically odorless but it is not a method of disposal since it only slightly reduces the amount."

"It was quite a privilege," Jim admitted, "that I was elected as chairman of the school senate where we met weekly to discuss resolutions to problems."

Jim loves the outdoors, hunting, fishing and wildlife and he considers himself an avid hunter. He points out that hunting is part of conservation which he endorses. For his wildlife interests, Jim received a gold metal for the state wildlife contest during FFA week in June. He placed first in the county.

Jim likes the speaking opportunities that FFA affords him. He gave talk at the FFA leadership weekend where FFA officers lay yearly goals.

Under Jim's leadership, his chapter placed in the top ten FFA chapters nationwide for their outstanding BOAC program. For this accomplishment, Jim won both $400 and $200 awards for his chapter. To his benefit, the Grassland Chapter will pay $200 towards Jim's trip to the annual November FFA national meeting in Kansas City.

The most pressing goal that Jim faces right now is maintaining his number one position of the senior class. "I want to be valedictorian," Jim said, "It's a close race between my best friend and myself. "But," he added, "if I don't make it, my best friend will and that will be just as exciting. More than winning, I like the competition that it generates between us."

Robin Weiss always has her binoculars ready. She plans a career in wildlife management.

Robin, who lives with her parents Peter and Karen Weiss at Manheim, is an example of many ag students. She has a sincere interest in the environment resources but she does not live on a farm.

Robin, who is second in her class with a 4.0 average, intended to apply to the Governor School's for Scientists. But when she read over the information, she noticed that the agriculture subjects suited her interests more than those listed under science.

Robin dreams of being a wildlife manager for a state or national park. "I always knew what I wanted to do since third grade," she admits, but she doesn't remember where she got the idea since neither families nor friends share her career goals. "I'm the only one from Manheim Central interested," she said.

Robin had a chance to work as a wildlife manager last fall when she spent a day at Middle Creek State Park. There, she got to see first hand that park managers' responsibilities can be extremely diverse. She said, "We were to spend a day watching blinds to make sure no one hunted in them." Instead park officials received a report that a stolen car had been spotted in the area. Robin, with park personnel, jumped into a pick-up truck and went scouting for the stolen vehicle. "We didn't find it ourselves," Robin said, "but police did."

Besides the required core classes at the summer session, Robin concentrated her efforts on wildlife, fishery and forestry subjects. "It was very beneficial and I learned a lot," she said.

While there, Robin's dream took an unusual twist. "We listened to a Peace Corps panel and I know that I would like to spend some time in the peace corps."

She forsees using her resource management training to help other countries. "There is a need for forestry positions" she said. "Many areas have no fuel because they cut down the trees which plays major havoc with the area's natural resources."

For Robin's project, she did an independent research on "Effects of Edge Habitat on Populations of Different Bird Species."

She explained that this meant getting up at 4:45 to go to the edge of the woods and watch the different birds. She admitted, "Somedays the first thing I heard was my roomate's alarm going off at 6:15. Then I knew that somehow I had slept through or turned off my own alarm."

Robin admits she didn't discover any new scientific information but she was intriqued to discover that certain birds prefer the edge habitat and others prefer either the field or forest for their home. "It was an interesting experiment," she said. "I learned that cows can be vicious animals and they were not pleased with my company in their pasture."

Numerous times Robin stressed, "The school is something I will remember a long time. It was so neat to have 65 people who are all interested in essentially the same things."

Robin plans to attend either Virginia Tech or Penn state.

For two summers, Robin has been part of the Appalacian Service project which builds and repairs homes in rural, depressed areas. And in her sophomore year, she was selected as the only tenth grader from her school to attend a weekend Hugh O'brien Seminar which teaches leadership development.

This honor society member is also involved in chorus and drama. She sings in a trio called "The Rainbow Connection." Afterschool, she helps at the Oasis youth Center in Manheim. She enjoys making wooden animals for yards. She said, "Not much isn't my hobby."

The students' five-week stay was highly structured and supervised. They were not allowed to visit another dorm floor not were they allowed to ride in a car other than their own parents.

The full schedule produced a hectic summer but it convinced Jim and Robin that they were headed in the right direction with their career choices.

For some, it may be tough to justify taking five weeks out of summer and forgo the earning power that many students put to use during summer months, but to these two achievers, the time was well-spent.

They said, "The projects taugh responsibility and that ag covers more variety than cows and corn. I'll never forget it."

CARTER 1987

Double Royalty

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Adams Co. Correspondent

TANEYTOWN, MD — For many farm families the memories of the summer of '87 will include having one of the farmer's daughters being chosen as a County Dairy Princess, a Fair Queen, or a Firemen's Queen. Any of these honors brings with it a host of appearances at parades, dinners, picnics, and promotions. But, few families will get the double dose of live-in royalty that Clyde and Rhoda Weant have at the 113 acre dairy operation located just south of the Mason-Dixon line. Their identical twin daughters, Karen and Kathy, both garnered crown and banner titles this summer.

Karen is the 1987 Carroll County Farm Queen and will compete for the Maryland Farm Queen title. Kathy is the 1987 Carroll County Dairy Princess. Her State competition was held the end of July. She was chosen as one of the Alternate Princesses andreceived the Best Skit Award. Sheis scheduled to present the skit during the Holstein Futurity Class at the Maryland State Fair.

Karen and Kathy will be seniors this year attending Francis Scott Key High School. In school they are both in the marching and concert bands, the Spanish Club, and members of the National Honor Society. However, both girls readily acknowledge that their farm backgrounds have steered them towards the 4-H program more than any other extracurricular activities.

Both girls love to compete and have boxes of ribbons and dozens of trophies to verify their excellence in dairy, swine, foods, clothing, consumer education, and demonstrations. They are both 10-year veterans of the 4-H program and both are National Club Congress winners.

Karen went to Chicago for Club Congress last year as one of the top 20 winners nationally in the category of Dairy Foods. Kathy has won her trip this year in the category of Breads.

Last year, Kathy was a member of the first place Dairy Bowl team in Maryland. That team went on to compete in national competition at the NAILE in Louisville, Kentucky where they placed fourth, the highest any Maryland team has ever placed in the contest.

From their long lists of achievement as 4-Hers, the twins selected their exchange trip experiences as their most meaningful. They enjoy traveling and experiencing other life-styles. They are quick to credit their parents as having been supportive of their 4-H activities and their competition in the Dairy Princess and Farm Queen programs even though it takes them away from home several times each week. Still the girls have work responsibilities on the farm including tending the calves and baby pigs, helping with milking chores, unloading hay wagons, gardening, and house chores.

Though both girls are royalty in the agriculture community, they seldom have appeared together at the same event. They say they've never been tempted to substitute for each other. However, when both girls took 35 entries each to the Carroll County Fair, Kathy admits she filled in for Karen at the cake sale while Karen showed her hogs. Karen notes that their friends can readily tell them apart, but that most adults get them confused.

Identical twins, Karen and Kathy Weant, Taneytown, MD display several of the ribbons and trophies they won recently at the Carroll County Fair. At the fair Karen was selected as the 1987 Carroll County Farm Queen. Now the family has both a queen and a princess since Kathy is the 1987 Carroll County Dairy Princess.

Following high school both Karen and Kathy plan to attend college and major in pre-med. They would both like to become chiropractors. And not surprisingly, they plan to become business partners.

While identical in their features, interests, and future ambitions, both girls are individualistic in their competitive nature. Stated Karen, "We love to compete against each other. We really don't care which one wins though. Other people have a bigger hang-up with that. Sometimes they'll pick someone else in a contest rather than choose between us. Or, they'll give us both the same award. We get judged as a group alot."

Yet, Kathy acknowledges that having a twin has been great for working on demonstrations where they can do a team presentation or where one will critic the other's presentation. "We'll be honest with each other," said Karen, "and we'll tell each other something that someone else might hesitate to criticize. Because, you see, we're really each other's best friend."

DO YOU LOVE YOUR CHILDREN AND YOUR NEIGHBORS?

To prove it, stop poisoning them if you want to go to heaven. Water is getting worse every week. Local fish and algae die in ponds. What will happen to your children?

Our customers have better crops than their chemical neighbors anyway, especially in drought — less bugs and blight, some practically none in alfalfla, and they can grow some kinds of excellent vegetables without spraying which other farmers can not. Some alfalfa has double to triple the sugar reading over the neighbor's chemical grown alfalfa. It's less brittle, less leaf shatter and can be baled sooner. Cows love it if it was rained on.

Corn makes more protein and TDN, and better fermentation silage.

Much less herbicide is needed for 2 reasons — No. 1 Sweet soil discourages and retards weed seed germination. No. 2. Toxic soil destroys some of herbicide effect. Some farmers had practically weed free fields without herbicides by using our liquid calcium and molasses mix — economically priced fertilizer.

There is no excuse to fertilize with chemicals, and for dairymen at least, to use pesticides and thereby poison water, humans, livestock and soil life. "Where there is no vision the people perish." (Psalms)

Some of our fertilizers work fast, some slow. The slow ones are cheap and very long lasting. Apply as soon as crop is off for best results next year, and for years to come. Sharp economists (plural) say the economic balloon is ready to burst. Our products will last many years. Prepare now to save sorrow.

A REVOLUTIONARY PRODUCT - specially treated soft coal. Excellent for all the following, and other ailments, you name it. High butterfat, usually a big increase. Very fast weight gains, well proven in hogs also. Saves feed. Better weight to feed ratio. Dysentary - quick results even if it is serious. Shipping fever - excellent preventage as well as quick recovery. Mastitis and breeding problems really respond. Off feed - The high carbon makes a very healthy condition in the stomach which promotes appetite and good digestion. The latter is very important for a healthy, productive body.

Price is reasonable. Repeat orders are large. The longer you wait the more profit you forfeit. It is well proven in Pa., Md. and Ohio. Ask for literature. Make appointment to talk it over, either here or on your farm.

Penn State 4-H Week

Contests, workshops, meeting new people, excitement...Penn State 4-H Week 1987, University Park Campus, State College, provides 4-H youth the opportunity to compete in various contests, develop leadership skills, and become acquainted with The Penn State University. Opening ceremonies guest speaker Joe Paterno, Head Nittany Lion Football Coach, provided insights of his own personal life experiences as well as his coaching career at Penn State University.

Thirty-six Montgomery County participants competed for top positions in the state. First place in the Dairy Bowl competition was captured by the team consisting of: Tricia Curtis (Pine Grove), Sue Curtis (Pine Grove), Cindy Moser (Barto), and Paul Gehringer (Bally). The Physical Fitness team of Allison Harner (Harleysville), Clorinda O'Leary (Perkiomenville), J. Michael Jacquette (Ambler), and Conrad Fisher (Green Lane), placed third as well as the third place Air Rifle team winners: Jonathan Koehler (Souderton), Kelly Zero (Harleysville), Dan Cochran (Trappe), and Steven Vettese (Ambler).

Two area participants of the State Fashion Revue, Judy Park (North Wales) and Lisa Koehler (Souderton) competed among fifty participants to be selected in a top ten "Honors Group" during the Penn State 4-H Week. Participants were judged on Appearance, Fashion, Design, Fit and Construction. Chosen among the top ten award winners, Lisa Koehler's winning creation will enable her to compete for further state recognition at National 4-H Congress in Chicago, Illinois.

Incorporating 4-H State Days and 4-H Leadership Congress, Penn State 4-H Week enables participants to compete in contests such as Archery, Clothing and Textiles, Dairy Bowl, Hippology, Orienteering, Physical Fitness, Public Speaking, Livestock, and Photography. Teens ages 13-18 years old also could attend the four day program participating in non-competitive workshops such as Suicide, Sexuality, Decision-making, Career development, and Theatre.

Additional highlights of the week included: A tour of Penn State University College of Agriculture, University Bakery, Mineral Museum, Breazeale Nuclear Reactor, Museum of Art and Astronomy Observatory. Teens also enjoyed activities such as swimming, ice-skating, dances, volleyball, scuba, and softball.

Hot Versus Raw Pack Canning

Many fruits and vegetables can be safely canned using either a hot pack or raw pack method. However, when processing food in a boiling-water bath, food experts say hot packing is best.

For raw packing, sterilized jars are tightly filled with freshly-prepared — but unheated — food. Hot packing involves heating this food to the boiling point, simmering it 3 to 5 minutes, and then loosely filling jars with the hot food.

"Although hot packing requires extra time and effort, this packing method has a number of advantages," says University of Delaware extension food and nutrition specialist Dr. Sue Snider.

It's the best way to remove air from plant tissues, he says. Fresh fruits and vegetables contain from 10 percent to more than 30 percent air. The presence of trapped air in the canned food causes it to float in the jars and to discolor (darken or turn brown) within 2 to 3 months of storage. Hot packing also shrinks the food, permitting more to be put into each jar.

"Hot packing is the preferred style of packing for food processed in a boiling-water bath," the food specialist says. "At first, the color of hot-packed foods may resemble that of raw-packed items, but within a short time, both the color and flavor of hot-packed foods will be superior."

Raw packing does work well for vegetables processed in a pressure canner, Snider says.

No matter whether food is raw packed or hot packed, the liquid (juice, syrup or water) must be heated to boiling just before adding it to the jars. Addition of hot liquid helps remove air from food tissues, shrinks food, helps keep it from floating, increases the vacuum seal in the jars and improves the shelf life of the processed food, the specialist says.

From a safety standpoint, Snider advises people who put up their own food to follow the accepted guidelines for each food item processed. For detailed information on food canning techniques, she suggests Delaware residents contact the extension office in Wilmington (571-2498), Newark (451-1239), Dover (697-4000) or Georgetown (856-7303).

Italian Friendship Force Visits Lancaster County

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

LANCASTER — "Young people must start friendships and must learn to know other people. They have to make a difference." These were the words of Rita Levoni, one of the leaders of a mixed group of Ambassadors from the cities of Pisa and Piachenza, Italy, who traveled to Lancaster County as part of the Friendship Force.

These 36 visitors, many of them teenagers, visited in homes in the county in an effort to come to a better understanding of the United States. They were impressed with the beautiful landscape, the lush greenery and the friendliness of the people. Levoni said, "I like Lancaster for the peace and the green. In Italy, I live in an apartment just outside of town."

Levoni was a guest of Lancaster County Friendship Force Club President Janice Wenger in Akron and also of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Warfel, retired dairy farmers near Millersville.

Francesco Montanari, 19, observed, "The countryside is beautiful and green." In addition to visiting with their hosts, the local Friendship Force Club sponsored picnics at Long Park and at the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Martin, Peters Road in Leola, and there they observed a dairy farm in action.

In addition to being able to see the Martin cows being milked, and enjoying a swim in the pool, they also were treated to a hayride through the surrounding countryside, where Amish farmers were busy and they could see some local crops. Visitors and hosts also got to see some of the damage done by recent hailstorms.

Martin, who works as an auctioneer, surprised the visitors with his patter as he put on a mini-auction, selling Friendship Force items. One visitor, Paola LoBianco, noted, "We have auctions in Italy, but they do not speak so fast." Bidding was done in American dollars, though Martin did make one somewhat unsuccessful attempt to sell a cap with Italian Lira. His skills were highly successful and included selling a Friendship Force T-shirt for $25, and a tote bag for $24.50.

It was not Cesare Cavalotti's first visit to the United States. Indeed, the 70-year-old retired businessman said that he has traveled here 42 times. However, he noted, "I gained something more, and it was better than when I came on business. The people are very friendly."

Cavalotti noted, "One big difference traveling with the Friendship Force is the opportunity to live in the homes of people. When you stay in hotels, you only see life like the films portray it. Films are completely wrong and give the wrong impression about the American way of life. There are fantastic families here and we are having a fantastic time. This is the real American Society."

Melina Maggina, leader for the group from Pisa, was enthusiastic about traveling with the Friendship Force. She said, "It is the only occasion to make friends and go into people's houses and see how they live and what they do." She said the visitors were able to visit Park City and see a typically American mall. She added, "We could breathe the quietness of this place."

Maggina expressed her personal concern about groups which travel from the United States to other countries, saying they are usually groups of retirees. "You need to encourage young people to travel so that the group shows a slice of the community."

One of the many young people traveling with the group from Italy, Patrizia Cella, particularly enjoyed a planned visit to Washington, D.C., saying, "It was a very nice town. It was pretty and not very big. The monuments were very nice. I'm sure everybody shares my opinion." She also enjoyed a trip to Hersheypark, saying they don't have amusement parks in Italy.

Eugene Witmer, left, regional Friendship Force director and Janice Wenger, president of the Lancaster Friendship Force Club, watch as Mr. and Mrs. Robert Martin accept an Italian American pin from Exchange Director Melina Maggini.

Hosts Mr. & Mrs. Walter Warfel, Millersville, help their Italian visitor Rita Levoni, center, feed hay to a cow.

Andrea LoBianco, 15, eats one of his favorite American foods - a hot dog - at a swimming party and picnic for the 36 Italian Ambassadors visiting in Lancaster with the Friendship Force and their hosts. LoBianco was visiting from Pisa, Italy.

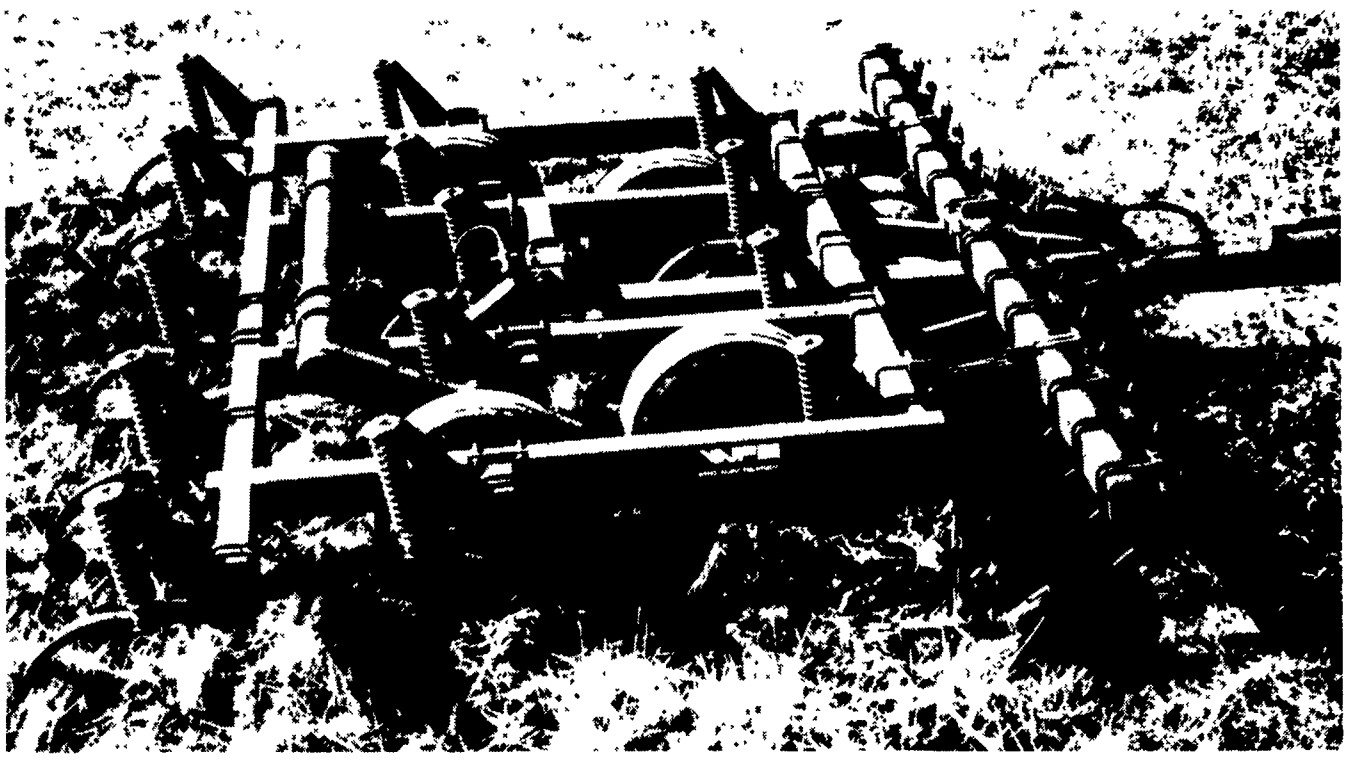
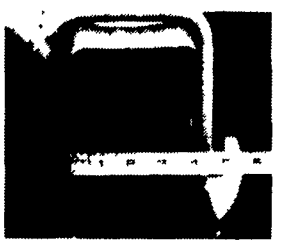
The 435 Conservation Chisel Plow... A MORE VALUABLE DISK CHISEL



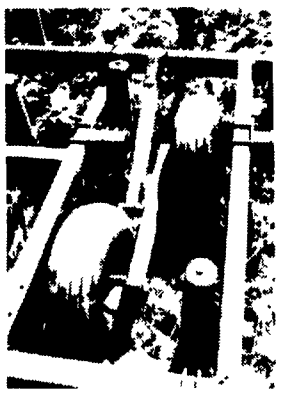
All disk chisels can save topsoil. But White Farm's 435 Conservation Chisel Plow also saves time and money.

Versatile concave disks up-front. Individually mounted 22 inch blades are hydraulically controlled to let you determine the amount of residue that remains on the surface. Disks can be raised completely out of the ground for maximum conservation, or lowered for maximum tillage.



Large 4"x6"x¼" steel box beams and strength, rigidity and built-in working weight to the 435

Big 4"x6" frames. Our steel box beams have 25 percent more weld area at every joint than competitors' 4"x4" beams.

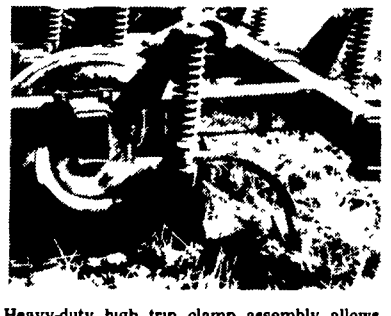


Walkmg beam axles help maintain more uniform working depth Note the long distance between wheel hubs

Individually mounted 22-inch spherical discs rotate on anti-friction bearings

Chisel shanks every twelve inches. Three ranks of chisels spaced twelve inches apart on a long 90 inch frame help maintain uniform tillage and prevent residue build up. The 2"x29" spring-loaded chisels raise up and over obstacles-up to 11 inches.

Come in and experience for yourself the quality and value built into every 435 Conservation Chisel Plow.



Heavy-duty high trip clamp assembly allows chisels to raise 11 inches to clear obstructions

Over 100 years of experience has helped White Farm design what we believe is the most versatile, durable conservation chisel plow today.

The group also enjoyed a visit to Philadelphia, especially in this year of the 200th anniversary of the Constitution.

For LoBianco and her son Andrea, a trip to the Hans Herr house helped them put in perspective the history of this county, and contrast it to the long, long history of Italy.

This group came from the Tuscany region, in northern Italy. One of the treats for local hosts was having spaghetti made for them by the visitors. Parmesan cheese and spaghetti from Italy made it authentic and delicious. For the Italians eating corn on the cob was a new experience.

The visitors were welcomed with citations from the Senate of Pennsylvania.

Although the Italians have returned to their homes, their visit will linger as more than just a pleasant memory. It was a shared opportunity of opening homes and hearts to international visitors in an attempt to make the world more peaceful.

Visitors from the cities of Pisa and Piachenza, Italy, delighted in the opportunity to take an old-fashioned hayride with their American hosts through the eastern Lancaster County countryside.

American Communities Shift Focus To Recycling

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Recycling is on the increase in the United States as a result of a growing problem with waste disposal. Statistics show that unless Americans embrace recycling soon, we will use up finite landfill space in trying to hide our trash.

"More than half the cities in the United States will exhaust their current landfills by 1990 – just three years from now," according to the Worldwatch Institute, a Washington-based environmental research group, who recently reported on the world's growing "garbage glut." For this reason and a host of others, spring cleaning in communities throughout the nation is taking on a whole new meaning and our focus is shifting to an alternative-recycling.

The report documents what municipal officials in the United States and abroad are calling a "waste disposal crisis." Landfills are full in some cities, and the problem is forcing municipal officials to truck trash to distant sites at soaring prices. In Minneapolis, for example, the cost of burying a ton of refuse skyrocketed from $5 in 1981 to $30 today, a sixfold increase. Philadelphia is paying $90 a ton to dispose of its trash as far away as southern Virginia, and is weighing a trash-export agreement with the island of Curacao in the Netherlands Antilles.

Glass manufacturers in North and South Carolina are taking the lead in an ongoing campaign to encourage recycling. The campaign surpassed its original goals for 1986 within the first few months, and as a result, the number of full-time professional recyclers in the two states increased 600 percent with more than seven million bottles and jars now being recycled there each month.

According to a recent public opinion survey taken in the Carolinas, 46 percent of those surveyed indicated they would reduce or avoid purchasing non-recyclable packages. Fifteen percent stated they would join in actions to have non-recyclables banned. Also, when respondents rated various types of packaging materials for product taste, glass came out on top.

Two thirds of the people in the Carolinas study also believed that as recycling increases for any packaging material, litter will be reduced for that material – an added bonus. In view of the fact that three percent of the nation's energy goes each year to produce packaging materials, recycling saves energy and natural resources.

A related consumer study conducted in the Sunshine state found that Floridians, by a ratio of eight to one, say that they would make an effort to separate out recyclable materials from regular garbage if curbside pickup was available in their neighborhood. as in the Carolinas survey, the recyclability of a container's material is important to respondents. Forty-nine percent of Floridians say they would not purchase a beverage container if they knew it could not be recycled.

Resource management demands out attention to recycling not just as "Spring Cleaners," but as environmentally conscious consumers. With this in mind, consumer preference for glass containers is a must. By choosing a one hundred percent recyclable container, a new bottle or jar can be produced for every one used. And for that, we can give ourselves an environmental pat on the back.

"Hardy corn is great! It does a great job of husking, and it's always nice and green, and it stands well. Our 300 acres are all Hardy. Why, some folks say, 'my gosh, I never saw corn like that!' "
Tom McConahy
Volant, PA

"Hardy comes out on top compared to the others. Hardy 760XS is a good shelling corn, yields terrific and stands great. The 370XS short season is a tall corn, and shells so easy, you can hardly hear it go through the combine."
Dave Moore
Boonsboro, MD

"I've been with Hardy for 10 years. We get a lot longer grain with Hardy 370XS, and it really shells great. And Hardy has a better stalk than most I've seen. It's great looking corn, why it really sells itself!"
Roy Hoffman
Richfield, PA

BROWN'S 40 HOG SUPPLEMENT + ► GRAIN ◄ + BROWN'S 36 HI E SWINE SUPPLEMENT

THESE HOG PRODUCERS KNOW BROWN'S SUPPLEMENTS WORK

Leon Zimmerman Farmstead
Farrow To Finish On Brown's Feeds

Leon raises 50 sows and almost all their shoats. He runs a three way cross using Duroc, York, and Spotted hogs. He switched from a national brand to Brown's Feeds a little over a year ago because he liked the price. Today he is still with Brown's because he likes the feed performance and the service that Rich Graff, his Brown's sales representative, provides. Leon markets his hogs at 240-250 lbs. at about 6 months after farrowing through a local auction. Buyers like his large meaty hogs which often top the market. Generally, he farrows an average of 10 pigs per sow and weans between 9 and 9.3. Birth weights are good at about 4 lbs. per pig for sows and around 3 lbs. from gilts. He uses his own shelled and/or ear corn plus Brown's 40 Hog Concentrate in his gestation, lactation, grower and finisher group. Leon likes the economics of marketing his corn through his hogs and the way Brown's 40 Hog Concentrate supplements his hogs needs for rapid economical growth and reproduction.

Elton Muth Farm
Farrow To Finish On Brown's

Elton "Chub" Muth's 45 sows are still a part time job, but he hopes to make it a full time business soon. Last year he sold 294 fat hogs at an average weight of 236 lbs. He moves his hogs off the farm about five months after birth using Brown's Pig Starter Crumbles through weaning and then Brown's 40 Hog Concentrate to market. Chub particularly likes Brown's Lac Pac and Gest Pac which are designed to compliment Brown's Hog Supplements when mixed in lactation and gestation rations. He normally weans over ten pigs per sow, but recently weaned 137 pigs out of 157 farrowed from ten sows. Chub likes the economics of the mixes he makes using Brown's 40 Hog Supplement, and is excited about the performance he sees in his gilts, sows, and market hogs.

Randy Hoffman Farm
Farrow To Forty-Five

Pictured with Randy (left) is Carl Reist (right) Brown's Sales Representative

Randy has been using Brown's Hog Feeds for 1½ years after switching from a national brand. His hogs are mostly Yorks and Liskey Large Whites with a few Hamps. Currently he has sixty-five sows and gilts and has expansion to ninety in his future. He markets his hogs at 45 lbs. to a local finishing house. Sows and gilts are on a mix of shelled corn and Brown's 36 Hi E Swine Supplement. This supplement contains 8% high quality fat. Randy feels the high fat supplement helps his sows milk better, hold their weight longer and breed back faster, even in hot weather. Weaning and breeding have never been a problem since he started using 36 Hi E Swine Supplement and he figures he saves $2 to $3/cwt over the supplement he previously used, and is impressed by how consistant the feed is from week to week. In addition, he appreciates the regular service calls that Carl Reist, his Brown's sales representative, makes and the friendly service that Brown's truck drivers provide.

Chocolate Milk Part Of School Lunch

SOUTHAMPTON (BUCKS CO.) — It will soon be back to school for the nation's children, says Dairy Council Inc., Southampton, PA, and along with buying new clothes and stationery supplies, parents often wonder just what makes a brown-bag lunch nutritious.

It's a good idea to work around your child's preferences. All the nutrition in the world won't do a bit of good if the lunch ends up in the waste basket, or traded with a friend.

The USDA nutritional guidelines form a good basis for a sound school lunch:

. . . 2 oz. of protein (meat, fish, or cheese), one large egg, ½ cup of legumes, or 4 tablespoons of peanut butter

. . . two or more fruits or vegetables totaling ¾ cup

. . . one cup of milk or yogurt, or 1-2 ounces cheese

. . . one or two slices of whole grain or enriched bread

Milk is the preferred beverage because its calcium content, along with other nutrients such as protein, riboflavin, vitamins, and minerals. Many children will choose chocolate milk over plain — but parents often fear that chocolate milk may not be nutritious.

Chocolate milk has the same nutrients found in unflavored milk — and is much more nutritious than a soft drink which has calories but essentially no nutrient value.

Milk contains fat, but the fat content differs among the various forms, with lowfat and skim being low in fat.

Parents may feel that the sugar in chocolate milk makes it less nutritious. When figured on a per capita basis, the consumption of added sucrose in flavored milk is small. Studies show only about one-half percent of sugar and corn sweetener in an average diet comes from flavored milks, including chocolate milk. Sugar added to chocolate milk increases the carbohydrate content — and thus the amount of calories. Except for the carbohydrate content, chocolate flavoring has little effect on milk's nutritive value.

Caffeine content may also be a matter of concern among parents. Studies show that children between 6 and 17 consume about 43 mg. of caffeine per day. Soft drinks and other beverages contribute significantly more caffeine than an occasional serving of chocolate milk.

An 8-ounce serving of chocolate milk each day provides from 5 to 7.5 mg. of caffeine a child typically consumes. The caffeine content, per 12-oz. can, of a few popular soft drinks is: Mountain Dew - 52 mg.; Tab - 44 mg.; Sunkist Orange - 42 mg.; Dr. Pepper - 37 mg.; Pepsi - 37 mg.; Coca-Cola - 34 mg. By regulation, cola beverages are required to have some caffeine.

As far as the effect of caffeine on behavior and learning, present evidence indicates that the amount of caffeine consumed from chocolate milk is too small to have detrimental effect on normal children.

If children prefer chocolate milk to plain with their lunch, says Dairy Council, parents can rest easy that it is a nutrient-dense food — it has a high proportion of nutrients in relation to its caloric content. For those children who need to watch calorie intake, lowfat chocolate milk is a nutritious and satisfying option.

Australian Beef Imports Denied

WASHINGTON, D.C., — The U.S. Department of Agriculture announced Aug. 18 it is denying entry of beef imports from Australia produced before May 25 and is urging Australia to implement additional residue control measures to prevent contaminated meat from reaching the United States.

The action follows the eighth finding this year of violative levels of residues in beef products shipped to the United States from Australia. "We are very concerned about this situation, and will not permit entry of imports of Australian beef produced before May 25, when Australian officials intensified their own residue testing of meat destined for the U.S.," Donald L. Houston, administrator of USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service, said.

Talks are now in progress between USDA and Australian officials on actions that could be taken respective to the restricted products to provide USDA with assurances that only products meeting U.S. standards will be offered for entry into the United States. No resolution on proposals offered by the Australian government is expected for several days.

FSIS began working with Australia when the first violation occurred in January and has increased its testing of Australian meat products entering the United States. In July, USDA officials conducted a special review of Australia's export procedures — visiting laboratories, meat plants, cold storage facilities and sale yards. Residues that have been detected above violative levels include the pesticides heptachlor, dieldrin, DDT, and cyromazine, and the antibiotic neomycin.

During 1986, Australia shipped 678 million pounds of meat to the United States, mostly beef and some lamb. This amount represents 29 percent of total U.S. meat and poultry imports for the year.

All imported meat and poultry is inspected in the originating country and then reinspected when it enters the United States. Each shipment must be accompanied by the exporting country's sanitary health certificate stating the product is not adulterated or misbranded, and that it meets requirements for the same products produced in the United States. Only countries which have been certified as having inspection systems that are at least equal to those in the U.S. are allowed to export meat and poultry to the United States.

Home Storage Of Fruits And Vegetables

UNIVERSITY PARK — Are you hoping to cut down on food costs his winter? If you have a surplus of food from your garden and are looking for alternatives to canning and freezing, you may want to consider the option of home storage.

Fruits and vegetables can be stored several ways, the outdoor root cellar, in-garden storages, or in an insulated basement storage room. Storage of the basics at home works during the winter months in conjunction with cold weather and expensive produce in the supermarkets.

Late maturing varieties of fruits and vegetables are the suitable type for storage. Delay the harvest as long as possible, because you will be dependent on the cold weather to keep the produce dormant. If you are growing your own produce, you can provide enough vegetables for in-season eating and winter storage.

While storage can be achieved without raising your utility bills and expensive equipment, it does require an awareness of food characteristics, materials, and maintenance to assist natural conditions.

Home Storage of Fruits and Vegetables, a 28-page booklet, includes many ideas and plans to help adapt areas in and around your home for cold storage. The booklet discusses attics, pantries, unheated rooms, traditional root cellars, converted areas in modern basements, in-garden storage, detailed information on food characteristics, optimum storage conditions and methods for harvesting and handling.

You may purchase the booklet Home Storage of Fruits and Vegetables, NRARES-7, for $3.00 from your County Extension Office or Agricultural Engineering Extension, 246 Agricultural Engineering Building, University Park, PA 16802. Please make checks payable to The Pennsylvania State University.

Highest FFA Degree

Four members of the New Jersey FFA Association are expected to receive their American Farmer degrees at the National FFA Convention in Kansas City, Missouri, November 12-14. Edgar David Emley, New Egypt, NJ; Thomas Hartung, Belvidere, NJ; Linda Pool, Mickleton, NJ; Patricia R. Rupell, Washington, NJ.

The American Farmer degree is based on demonstrated leadership ability and outstanding agricultural production, processing or services records. As the highest degree that members can achieve, only 728 of the 416,000 members who have earned Chapter and State Farmer degrees will receive the national award.

To receive this degree, members must have earned $5,000 through an agriucltural occupational experience program and must have productively invested those earnings into an agricultural program.

MAGNUM

Introducing The First All-New Tractors From Case IH

Case IH put more into the new MAGNUM tractor line than any farm tractors developed in over twenty years. Here's why you'll get more out of it:

MAGNUM means more. Outstanding field performance from a new 505 cubic inch turbocharged engine with reserve power. MAGNUM power.

The MAGNUM tractor's powershift puts 18-speeds of shift-on-the-go workpower at your fingertips — standard. And only MAGNUM tractors offer a full powershift creeper transmission with six additional speeds from .5 to 2.1 mph... for more control and performance. MAGNUM performance.

The MAGNUM tractor's new larger cab has 48 square feet of window area.. virtually unobstructed visibility... more room... and more seating comfort. MAGNUM comfort.

It all adds up: Case IH MAGNUM tractors are setting new standards for the 130-195 PTO hp power range and for you. See us for details.

MAGNUM means more.

IF YOU WANT MORE FROM YOUR CROP... CASE INTERNATIONAL IS THE ANSWER

Axial-Flow has always been a clean, simple, efficient system. Now, with the 1600's increased threshing and separating area, it does an even more complete job.

The Axial-Flow system threshes grain several times (not just once) as it moves rearward, spiraling gently around and around the single rotor. Instead of a troublesome system of straw walkers, Axial-Flow uses simple separating grates and the power of centrifugal force.

Threshing and separating are accomplished in one highly efficient operation within the rotor and cage. You'll save a lot of grain that conventional combines miss. And it'll be cleaner grain because Axial-Flow takes the time to be gentle and thorough.

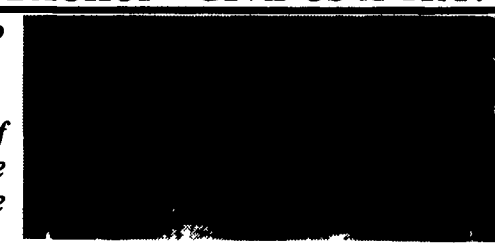
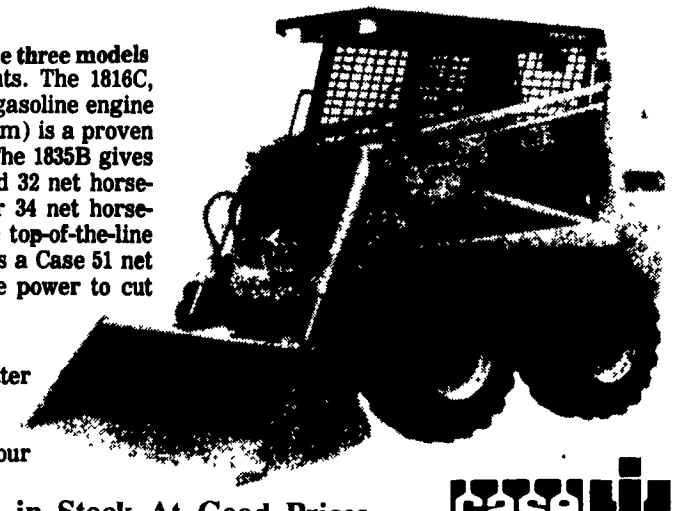
CASE... THE "CAN DO" MACHINE

"I can do the work of 10 men with anyone of my five 1845 Case Uniloaders," says one happy customer. "You really can't believe it 'til you put one to work!"



The line of Case skid steers inlcude three models to meet your workload requirements. The 1816C, with a 16 net horsepower (11.9 kW) gasoline engine and a width of only 35 inches (889 mm) is a proven performer for tight-quarter work. The 1835B gives you a choice of a Case water-cooled 32 net horsepower (23.9 kW) gasoline engine or 34 net horsepower (25.4 kW) diesel engine. The top-of-the-line 1845C Uni-Loader skid steer features a Case 51 net horsepower (38 kW) diesel with the power to cut big jobs down to size.



Maneuverability, dependability and serviceability all add up to better performance and a better bottom line. For more facts and convenient one-stop service see your Case IH dealer.

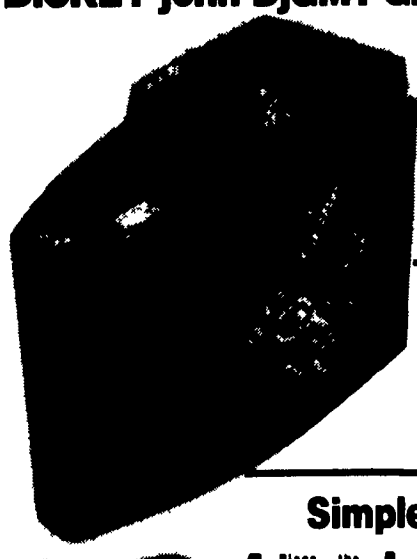
DICKEY-john DjGMT Grain Moisture Tester



The DICKEY john Grain Moisture Tester measures moisture content automatically You don t have to preweigh the sample There are no meters to read no dials to set and no thermometers to lose As soon as you pour in the grain sample the testing sequence begins A digital readout is displayed when the proper weight of the sample has entered the test chamber The readout is corrected for temperature at the touch of a pressure sensitive switch Models are available with direct readouts for corn soybeans or wheat and adhesive conver sion charts are provided for other grains

- GRAIN MODEL List...$259
  CASH...$185
- FORAGE MODEL
  CASH $294.50

Simple, four-step operation

1 Place the tester on a steady level surface Then, lift the protective cover up and slide it down out of the way

2 Use the sample cup to pour grain into the testing cell Pour slowly and steadily, taking about eight to ten seconds to empty the sample cup A readout will appear automatically.

3 Wait at least fifteen seconds Then, press the temperature compensation switch for a direct readout of the moisture content of the grain listed on that switch Refer to the appropriate chart for other grains

4 Empty the tester by turning it over (If you should forget to empty the test cell, the tester will shut itself off automatically after two minutes.)

AXIAL-FLOW COMBINE OWNERS SPEAK OUT ABOUT HOOBER COMBINE SERVICE

HOOBER'S COMBINE SERVICE SPECIALISTS ARE EXPERIENCED IN ALL CROPS AND MOST ALL FIELD CONDITIONS

We Asked Our Combine Service Customers This Question:

"What Can C.B. Hoober & Son, Inc. Do To Improve Our Service To You?"

Here Are A Few Replies.

I really can't think of any one thing to improve on. I'm sure there are a few, but I've always found when I needed advice, parts or service someone would try to help day or night. If all dealerships would try as hard as you guys, farmers would be better off.

DAVE BECKER
Elizabethtown, PA

All of your personnel have a good disposition and a genuine interest in my problem. If I can't figure out my problem in 10-15 minutes, or don't know where to start, I call Don Carper. He usually tells me immediately how to solve my problem, but if he can't he gets me the solution via 2-way radio from Ken Diller. No question is stupid, even if you asked it last year & forgot it.

MELVIN BAILE
New Windsor, MD

You are doing an excellent job. I don't know what more a farmer could want from a dealer!

HOWARD MYERS
Lawrenceville, NJ

Dolomite Construction Co. is also in a service oriented business. I would only hope that my customers feel as satisfied with our service as I am with yours.

In the farm business, you are the best we do business with.

BOB BLEMIS
Dolomite Construction

Not all places we walk into do we get the attitude that the people behind the counter want to solve your problem.

AARON KAUFFMAN
Parkesburg, PA

C.B. Hoober is a pleasant place to do business. Everyone is very courteous. We have no complaints at all. Ken Diller really knows his combines & we appreciate his patience in explaining things to us. We would rate C.B. Hoober at the top of the list of businesses we deal with. Everyone is very honest & sincere, a rare quality nowadays in business.

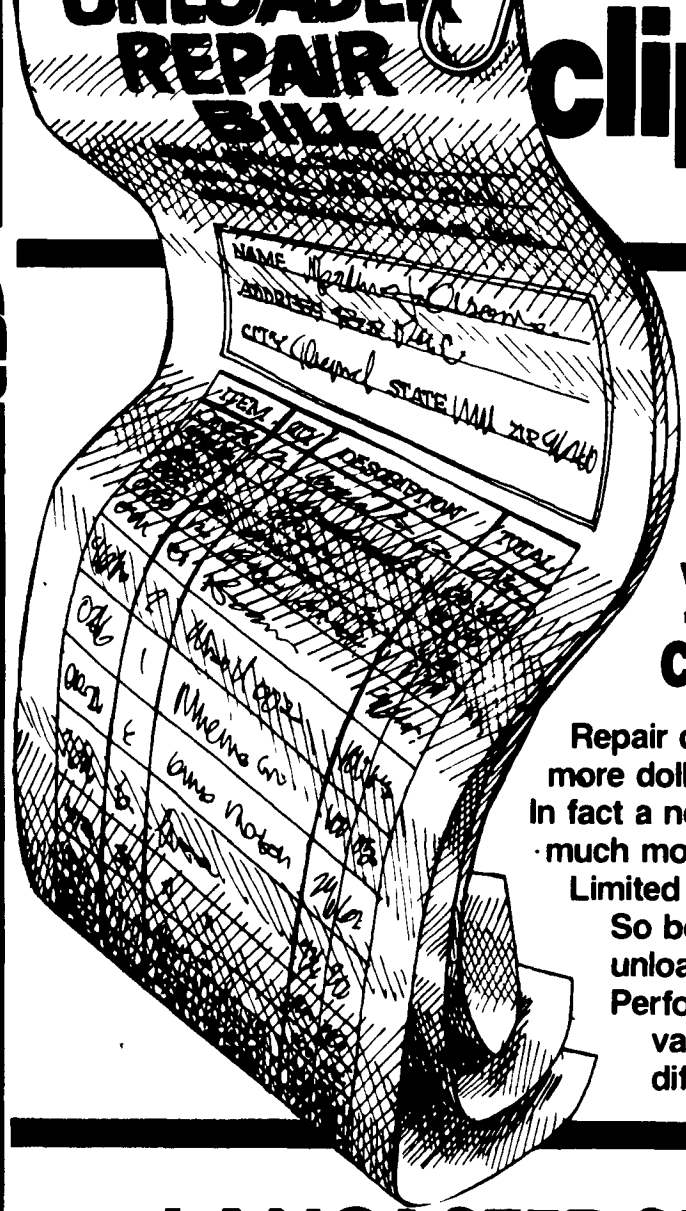
SILO UNLOADER REPAIR BILL


Don't get clipped.

Repairing that old unloader may not be your wisest choice...

Repair costs can clip you for a lot more dollars than you might think. In fact a new unloader may not cost much more during "Hanson's Limited Time Unloader Special". So before you repair that old unloader, check with Hanson. Performance, dependability and value. That's the Hanson difference.

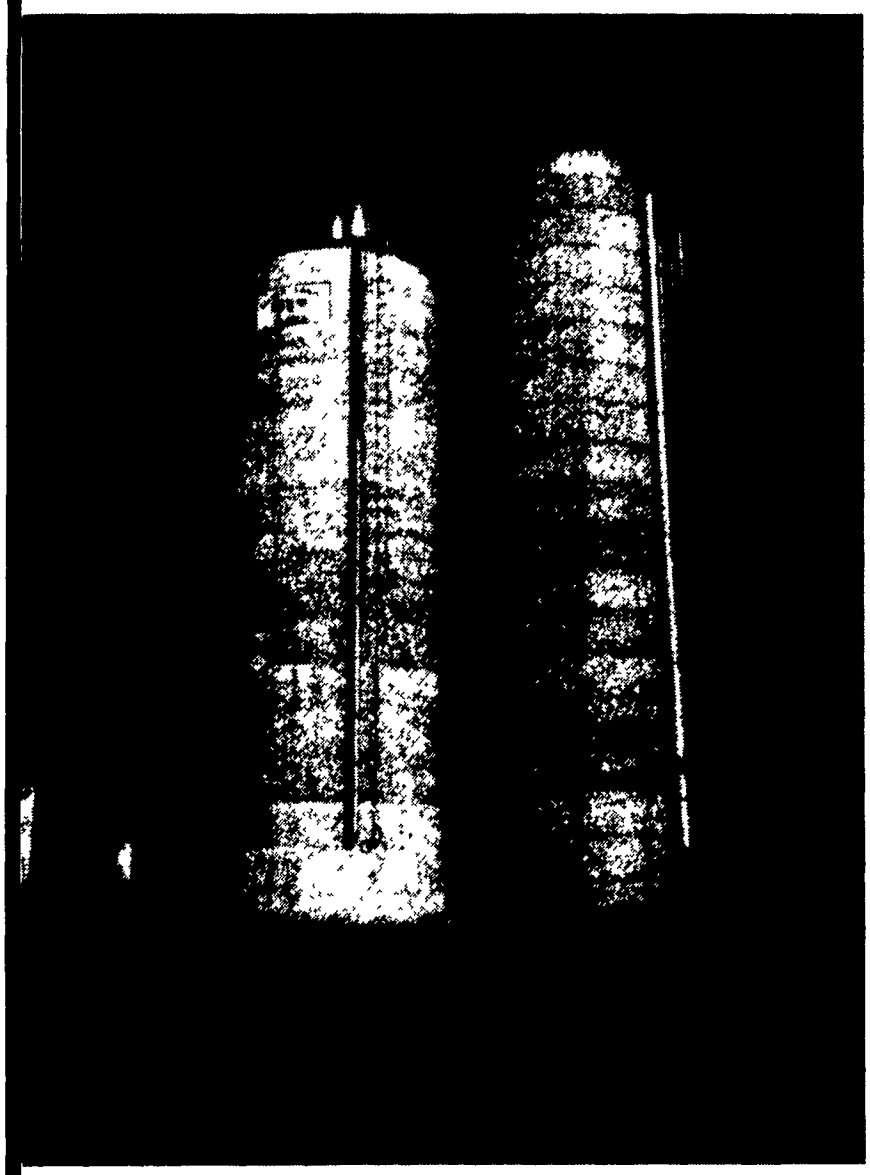
Solid Ways To Improve Your Farm

Consider The Many Advantages Of Concrete



You still have time to get your Sollenberger Silo for high moisture corn storage this fall. The summer of 1987 will be remembered for the many hot, dry days. These high temperatures damaged a lot of stored corn in structures that have a thin wall and do not reflect heat. Avoid this heat damage with a poured concrete silo from Sollenberger Silos Corp.

* The Laidig 43 bottom unloader handles high moisture ear corn and shelled corn.

* The Laidig 98 or 198 will do a good job with grains or forage at 55-60% moisture. SAVE YOUR VALUABLE LEAVES.

You Will Appreciate The Quality Of A Sollenberger Silo For Many Years To Come.

1987 National Junior Chianina Herdsman

Roger Gerdes, NJHS chairman presents the 1987 National Junior Chianina Herdsman buckle to Karen Brothers of East Berlin, York County. Pete Potter (right) is the president of the Chianina Association in South Dakota.

EAST BERLIN — Karen J. Brothers didn't drive 35 hours from Pennsylvania to Rapid City, S.D. for nothing. She came to put East Berlin, Pennsylvania on the map.

She did just that. On the way home, she was wearing the 1987 National Junior Chianina Herdsman buckle.

Brothers, 20, brought four head to the American Junior Chianina Assn. National Junior Heifer Show, three in the same class; participated in all the events the NJHS had to offer, and, to top it off, was named first runner-up National Chianina Queen.

To drive to the NJHS itself was a challenge for the slender brunette. To do this she had to have her semi-truck driving license to operate their Mercedes tractor and trailer. After Karen, her mother Margie, and fellow Pennsylvanian showman, Jamie Kohr got their license and permits, they headed west. While most everyone else worried about where the next gas station was, Karen was looking for weigh stations and logging hours and miles in her log book.

Besides showing fullblood Chianina cattle, this busy AJCA member is currently taking flying lessons and plans to take helicopter lessons soon, if she can find time between soccer, sailing and downhill skiing.

Karen, who will be a senior at Franklin and Marshall College this fall, hopes to attend Harvard Law School next year and aspires to be a tax attorney.

Special thanks to Ken and Caren Jacobsen, K/C Cattle Company, for donating the buckle and congratulations to the 1987 National Junior Chianina Herdsman, Karen J. Brothers.

Beam Takes Swine Championship

For the third year in a row, Brian Beam, Elverson, exhibited the Grand Champion Market Hog at the Chester County 4-H Swine Show at New Holland Sales Stable. And as always, Hatfield Packing Company was there to purchase the 255 lb. champion for a whopping $4.00/lb. Brian also exhibited the grand champion trio which was purchased by ABC Groff of New Holland, always a staunch supporter, for $1.55/lb.

A newcomer to the Chester County 4-H Swine Club, Dave Renkert of Elverson, also had a great day exhibiting the Reserve Grand Champion Market Hog and the Reserve Champion Trio. The Reserve Champion, a 245 lb. crossbred, was purchased by Hatfield for $1.60/lb. and the Reserve Champion Trio was also purchased by Hatfield for $.85/lb. Hatfield Packing Company was the volume buyer of the day and has been sold for the past eight years. The Chester County 4-H members are grateful for their unending support. The sale of 83 hogs averaged $.81/lb.

Hatfield Packing purchased the Reserve Champion Hog owned by Dave Renkert for $1.60/lb. Carol and Alleson Diffenbach are representing Hatfield.

Keeping Feeder Cattle Healthy

In recent years, the approach to animal health has switched from treatment of disease to prevention of disease. Cattle producers who realize that preventive care saves time and money in the long run are concerned about how management practices and environmental conditions affect animal health.

One practice that produces stress in feeder cattle is removing them from the familiar maternal environment to the competitive feedlot. Because this transition is unavoidable under most feeding systems, producers must devote considerable effort to preparing animals for the change. Other stressful environmental conditions and procedures included the following:

- Dehorning
- Castration
- Weaning
- Sudden change in feed or water intake
- Loss of familiar surroundings
- Poor sanitation
- Exposure to new disease-producing agents
- Transportation
- Exposure to bad weather

Most animals can withstand one or more of these stresses simultaneously and remain healthy because they have a variety of self-regulating controls that keep their body system functioning normally. One such control, the immune system, protects the animal against potential disease-producing agents during periods of stress. Numerous stresses acting at one time may overwhelm the immune system, resulting in disease outbreaks such as "shipping fever" in Pennsylvania feedlots.

Authorities generally agree that as much as 75 to 80 percent of the health problems in feeder cattle are related to shipping. Once the cattle have adjusted to their new environment, health maintenance should require less attention. But some conditions, such as intensive grain feeding alone, produce constant stress on cattle and can cause health problems at any time.

Preshipment Conditioning

Recommendations can be made for minimizing stress in feeder calves. Since the change from the maternal to the feedlot environment involves tremendous stress, preparation for this period — preconditioning — has been the focus of attention. The buyer of feeder cattle should be aware of recommendations for avoiding stress-related difficulties and economic losses. The following preconditioning procedures for generally considered to be very effective, but they should be modified according to the given situation.

New York Beef Council Moves

ROME — The office of the New York Beef Industry Council has moved to Rome, New York.

"The move puts the state's beef promotion organization in a more central location," according to Jerry Reed, executive director. "We've leased space in the Oneida County Farm Bureau Building, which is just minutes from the New York State Thruway."

"At the new office of the New York Beef Industry Council we will be establishing a video library that will be made available to organizations who are looking for materials for meetings or events," according to Reed. The council office will also serve as a clearing house for information about beef or the beef industry. Printed materials, including recipe booklets, as well as other education materials will be available through this office.

The new address of the New York Beef Industry Council is: RD#1 Box 85, Rome, NY 13440, Phone: 315-339-NYBC.

Schuylkill County Fair Raises $21,000 For New Fairgrounds

The 1987 Schuylkill County Fair broke all records of attendance with nearly 35,000 people visiting the fair, now in its fourth year.

According to fair officials, about $21,000 was raised toward the $200,000 needed to buy the new fairgrounds in Summit Station, formerly Happy Holiday Park. This sight is approximately 61 acres.

The entries in the beef and sheep were up this year. Five of the animals were donated back to the fair.

The grand champion in the market steer division was Mike Otto from Friedensburg, Beth Biebleheimer of Andreas won the market lamb grand championship. Steve Miller of Tamaqua took the honors in the market swine division.

Study Predicts Flood Damages To Double

Damages caused by flooding in the upstream areas will double in the next 50 years. In the year 2030, the U.S. Department of Agriculture projects that upstream damage will be nearly $10 billion (in 1980 Dollars). In 1985, flood damages amounted to $5 billion.

The estimate of flood damages are contained in the second RCA Appraisal compiled by USDA. The Resources Conservation Act (RCA) of 1977, as amended, requires that USDA Appraise soil, water and related resources on the non-federal land of the United States.

Sixty million acres, or 14 percent, of America's cropland is flood prone land. Because of the high agricultural productivity of this land, it is expected to remain devoted to crop production.

Brown's Sponsors Seminar On Profitable Pork

FLEETWOOD — Recently over one hundred pork producers, and people interested in the hog industry gathered at the Fleetwood Grange to participate in a "pig picking" and a seminar on hog production. Following an excellent meal of barbecued pork raised on Brown's 40 Hog Supplement and corn, Dr. Carl Brown, Brown's Sales Manager, introduced the guests to F.M. Brown's Sons, Inc. and its employees. He then gave a brief presentation on the importance of fine tuning hog management programs. Since 1980 the number of farms raising hogs has dropped 50% while the percentage of total hogs raised in 500 head or larger units increased from 42% to 56%. The industry is specializing, but eastern pork producers still have many positive factors in their favor. Corn prices are relatively low and many local hog farmers find finished hogs an excellent way to market their corn crop year round at a higher rate of return. Local producers also have numerous marketing opportunities for weaned or finished hogs. Brown's specializes in producing feeds which can be fine tuned to each customers needs. Brown's doesn't compete with their customers by contracting hogs, but rather they try to specialize in making products that maximize the increasing genetic efficiency of todays leaner hog.

Dr. Matt Parsons was the next speaker on the program. Dr. Parsons is Brown's consulting hog nutritionist. He is certainly no stranger to Pennsylvania, having formally been swine extension specialist at Penn State. He also works with his family on their hog and sheep farm in Massachusetts. Dr. Parsons touched on numerous areas that improve profitability on hog farms. He discussed protein and lysine requirements and the extra value "fat added" feeds provide in lactating, growing, and finishing diets. He discussed the five factors that affect hog price (weight, dressing percentage, percent lean, appearance and husbandry practices) and some of the areas that affect each. He also discussed feeding sows during the summer, and how high fat diets generated from mixing corn with a food such as Brown's Hi E 36 Swine Supplement with 8% high quality fat improve weaning weights and reduce the amount of body heat sows produce. Dr. Parsons reviewed some research into the variability of certain commodity feed ingredients and the importance of a good quality control program such as the one conducted by Brown's to produce a consistent feed. He also briefly touched on the value of antibiotics in feeds and the importance of feeding out cull sows to get a better profit margin on them.

Dr. Tom Kichura, Brown's Director of Nutrition, followed up on Dr. Trayers theme by showing how feeds may be customized using Brown's Flex-Formula's to meet specific needs. He showed cost to benefit ratios of using specific antibiotics to solve specific problems. Brown's has a standard set of antibiotics for their regular feeds, but a wide range of products available for treatment or prevention of a specific problem. He also discussed Brown's ability to design a program when a non-traditional feed is used as the energy source, or where feed intakes are much higher or lower than normally expected.

David McCracken, a Brown's sales representative concluded the program with some excellent management tips on managing farrowing and finishing barns. Dave is one of eight full time sales representatives that routinely service accounts for Brown's customers.

In his concluding remarks, Carl Brown thanked those who attended and challenged them to take advantage of the current strong hog market to fine tune their entire hog feeding and management program. He stressed that Brown's is involved in the hog industry, not as a competitor, but as a manufacturer of high quality supplements and complete feeds.

Case IH has introduced the all-new 7100 Series tractors, called the Magnum line, featuring a totally new engine, transmission and cab. The Magnum line of two-wheel-drive tractors in the 130 to 195 PTO horsepower range represents a totally new approach to tractor design and manufacturing, inspired by the 1985 merger of J I Case and International Harvester.

Case IH Shows Magnum Tractors

RACINE, WISCONSIN — Case IH today introduced the all-new 7100 Series tractors, called the Magnum line, featuring a totally new engine, transmission and cab that will set future industry standards for performance, efficiency and operator comfort.

The Magnum line of two-wheel-drive tractors in the 130 to 195 PTO horsepower (hp) range represents a totally new approach to tractor design and manufacturing, inspired by the 1985 merger of J I Case and International Harvester.

"The research, engineering and manufacturing standards established by the Magnum tractors set the stage for future Case IH product offerings, in addition to establishing new industry performance and quality benchmarks," said Jerome K. Green, Case IH president and chief executive officer.

The Magnum line includes the Model 7110 (130 PTO hp), the Model 7120 (150 PTO hp), the Model 7130 (170 PTO hp) and the Model 7140 (195 PTO hp). A mechanical-front-drive (MFD) option is available on all models. Key features include:

• a large displacement, 505-cubic-inch turbocharged engine with high torque rise for maximum power, efficiency and long life;

• an 18-speed full powershift transmission and optional six-speed creeper for a total of 24 speeds — providing more power shifts than any other tractor in the industry; and

• a new cab — with more than 47 square feet of glass for unsurpassed visibility — that will also set new standards of comfort.

Engine Capabilities

All Magnum tractors incorporate the computer-aided designed and manufactured Family II 6T-830 turbocharged diesel engine. The Model 7140 is also aftercooled.

The water-cooled, 505-cubic-inch engine delivers more power at lower rpm, resulting in longer and cooler operation at maximum horsepower and greater fuel economy. Additionally, the engine's high torque rise and excellent lugging ability allow smooth and efficient operation regardless of soil condition or changing terrain.

The new Family II design uses 25 percent fewer parts than comparable engines and has a high degree of parts commonality with Family I engines found in other Case IH tractors.

Magnum tractors have a controlled air-flow system that features a totally enclosed engine compartment to keep out dirt and debris. A tilt hood, unique service door and easily removable panels provide instant access to the entire engine.

Other features that further improve operating and maintenance efficiencies include:

• an exclusive Poly-Vee drive belt that does the work of multiple belts in standard engines, resulting in longer belt life and reduced servicing requirements;

• an automatic belt tensioner to further increase belt life, improve efficiency and minimize adjustments;

• a viscous fan drive on Models 7120, 7130 and 7140 for improved fuel economy and engine efficiency;

• buit-in piston oil cooling and an in-block water pump to enhance efficiency and extend engine lilfe; and

• a new heavy-duty, 110-amp alternator for additional electrical capacity to provide auxiliary power for all farming requirements.

Performance Capabilities

An 18-speed full powershift transmission provides smooth, close-ratio shifting throughout the entire range.

The single-lever, on-the-go shift control provides no-clutch shifting from forward to reverse speeds and start-up capability in any gear.

An optional full powershift creeper provides six additional speeds for a total of 24 forward speeds — more than any other full powershift transmission in the industry. The creeper package allows maximum flexibility at the

Patz New Gutter Cleaner

The new Patz stainless steel gutter cleaner slide provides longer life due to corrosion resistance. This stainless steel slide is designed for highly corrosive conditions, including hog and poultry operations. Use as a replacement slide or in a new installation.

The 12-gauge stainless steel (Type 304) with a welded box-beam center assures extra strength and rigidity. The return-side slide lip is welded in place as a standard feature.

Each slide is custom built for gutter widths of 15 to 18 inches and lengths of 16, 18 and 20 feet. However, additional lead time is required.

The new Patz stainless steel slide accommodates Patz standard and heavy-duty drive units. All Patz components such as support stands, hold-in-angle and wingboard fit the new stainless steel slide.

BUSINESS NEWS...

Stoltzfus Feed And Supply Opens

Leon Stoltzfus has opened Stoltzfus Feed & Supply, a full service feed business in Gap, one mile south of Route 30 on Route 41.

"The people in farming today, are still the kind of people I admire most and try to work closely with," says Leon Stoltzfus. "They are individuals that are self-motivated and self-directed, which results in solid business practices and ethics. The culmination of many years of effort toward owning and operating ones own business is a basic part of America's tradition. We believe in the free enterprise system."

Stoltzfus Feed & Supply is unique in that after years of working with farmers. They wanted to find a way to help the independent farmer survive. Their concept of helping the farmer be competitive is to help him keep his feed costs down. One way they do this is by providing swine and beef base mixes for the farmer to add to his own grain. They also buy hogs for Leidy's packing.

After selling swine base mixes, baby pig starters, prestarters, and feed grade medication to farmers for the last several years, Stoltzfus decided to open a warehouse in the Gap area and expand the business to include a full line of feeds from pets to farm animals as well as salts and water softener salts.

"We want to serve the community's needs," Stoltzfus said. "Our plans are to grow with the community." In order to do this he will also add a line of mulches and lawn care products in the spring.

"We will handle anything that can be bought in a bag," Stoltzfus said. Adding to the Carl Akey products aforementioned," they are offering beef base mixes, dairy feed ingredients, calf starters and milk replacers. Vitamin and mineral mix for poultry, turkey and sheep is also available. A full line of pet feeds are available for dogs, cats, rabbits, horses and birds, as well as specialty feeds. The store handles Buckeye, Purina, Dad's, Wayne, Iams, Science Diets and ANF feeds.

Stoltzfus has hired three employees to help service customers. They will work in conjunction with nutritionists and veterinarians to offer advice on nutritional needs and will be able to special order products that are needed. Because of buying in truck load lots, many of the products are available at lower costs.

Stoltzfus Feed and Supply, which opened on July 27, is open Monday through Thursday from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m., Friday from 7:30 a.m. until 8 p.m. and Saturday from 8 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Deutz-Allis Has School

Four Pennsylvania residents receive instruction in Gleaner combine maintenance and repair during a Deutz-Allis service training school at Alfred (NY) State College. From left are John Hoffman of Coopersburg, serviceman with C.J. Wonsidler Bros., Quakertown; Dennis Wegrzynowicz of Catawissa RD 3, who represents Nichols Farm Equipment of Bloomsburg RD; John Dotterer and Ralph Stringer, both of Dotterer Equipment, Mill Hall RD 3; and L. Clifford Fisher of Butler, district service specialist for Deutz-Allis. Representatives of farm implement firms throughout New York and Pennsylvania attended the two-day special training sessions staged in Alfred State College's extensive facilities for agricultural engineering technology.

extremely slow speeds required for specialty crop planting and harvesting.

A simple on-the-go switch engages the mechanical-front-drive (MFD) option, allowing the operator to quickly switch from two-wheel-drive to the MFD mode.

New Cab

A new cab incorporates the latest in ergonomic design. With more than 47 square feet of glass, the cab provides unparalleled visibility for field operations. Case IH designed the exhaust stack to be completely out of view from the driver's seat, providing a panoramic view of the field.

The cab features more head and shoulder room than comparable tractors. A right-hand console with carefully placed tractor controls make operation easy and efficient. A full-feature seat with both left and right swivel and a wide, adjustable left-hand armrest further contribute to operator comfort.

Advanced Manufacturing

To manufcture this new tractor series, Case IH has completely redesigned the production line at its Racine, Wisconsin, manufacturing facility. The new line incorporates manufacturing procedures and quality assurance concepts that will become standard for all future products.

All tractors must meet strict quality standards at each step of assembly before proceeding to the next step in the assembly process. Quality control systems include a "hot test" room where inspectors ensure that all tractors pass functional tests on engine, transmission, hydraulics, hitch and brakes; and a computer-monitored testing station that checks 103 items on every cab to ensure all systems are functioning properly.

Worker involvement is another key to ensuring that the new manufacturing process produces the highest-quality tractors. Quality Assurance Assembler teams follow tractors through each certification zone to ensure that the tractor passes every required standard. In addition, workers are responsible for stopping the assembly line if, in their opinion, quality is being compromised.

Japan Increases Beef Import Quotas

Japan will increase its 1987 fiscal year beef import quota by 37,000 metric tons (MT), a 21 percent hike, reports the U.S. Meat Export Federation (MEF). This move by the Japanese government, the first of its kind since the import quota was negotiated in 1984, is aimed in part at helping Japan meet its growing demand for high-quality beef.

An upturn in consumer demand for beef and recent changes in market conditions are the reasons behind the quota increase. "The Japanese consumer is becoming better educated about the quality of U.S. beef, largely as a result of MEF's meat promotional efforts," says Phil Seng, MEF Asian Director. "With the help of recent Targeted Export Assistance funds, we've been able to explain the benefits of U.S. meat directly to the Japanese consumer."

Seng also said prices for Japanese cattle are at their highest levels. In order to bring a downward pressure on prices and to meet increased consumer demand, the Japanese government is importing more beef.

Although Japan did not specify which countries would fill the additional quota, it is likely half of the amount purchased would be U.S. grain-fed beef. This move may be an attempt to help ease trade tensions between the U.S. and Japan.

The beef quotas were established 24 years ago when Japan faced an unfavorable trade balance with the U.S. That situation no longer exists, and the U.S. Government wants the quota lifted when the trade agreement expires in March 1988.

The beef quota, which initially limited 1987 fiscal year import levels to 177,000 MT, has been increased to 214,000 MT. "Many people have questioned the value of promoting U.S. beef in Japan," says Seng. "This recent quota increase is clear example of the success of promoting U.S. meat in a country where quotas exist."

Ephrata Fair Receives Funds

EPHRATA — The Ephrata Farmer's Day Association has received a $1,515 matching grant as reimbursement for a land purchase made in 1980 which expanded the Ephrata Fair grounds, according to Sen. Noah W. Wenger, R-36.

"The Ephrata Fair is the largest fair held in Lancaster County and the largest street fair in the state," said Wenger. "This fair and others throughout the Commonwealth offer wholesome entertainment for people of all ages."

According to Wenger, sixty-three Pennsylvania agricultural fairs will receive matching fund grants. The grants are to be used for a variety of projects which have been undertaken by fair sponsors to improve buildings and grounds, build new facilities, or purchase land.

Wenger said, this year $2.5 million was allocated to the Fair Fund to be used to reimburse local fair, 4-H and FFA organizations for operating expenses associated with their annual events. The grants for the fair ground improvements were made available from balances remaining in the Fair Fund.

Youth Exhibit Quality Dairy Cattle

BY BETSY YODER
Huntingdon Co. Correspondent

HUNTINGDON — Holstein exhibitors at the Huntingdon County Fair witnessed John A. Foster III repeat something he has done quite a few times on the tanbark trail this summer. He won grand champion with Grove-Run Sexy Darlene once again.

Darlene is a three year old daughter of Ocean-View Sexation and has stepped into the champion spotlight at several shows.

Mr. Foster also had reserve grand champion with Globe-Run Columbus Petunia. She is a four year old daughter of Leadfield Columbus ET.

Stepping into the junior championship slot was Bill McMath. His animal is Bardale Columbus Pet a senior yearling daughter of the Leadfield Columbus bull also.

Bylerlawn Messiah Fern won the reserve junior champion award for her owner, James Byler. She is a daughter of Hanover-Hill Messiah-ET and was shown in the junior yearling class.

Christie Booher dominated the senior classes in the Brown Swiss breed and also won the grand championship with Rivervale Maiden P Margo. Margo is a five year daughter of Maple Grove Performer.

Christie also had the reserve grand champion with another five year old - Rivervale Rita Rae.

Richard Chesney won both the junior and reserve junior championships. A senior calf, Shellytown Target Dot, a daughter of Ash Hollow Tammys Target, was the junior champ. Chesney Lane Doris Lilac, a junior yearling, was the reserve champion.

The Hardy family dominated the Jersey competition. Janice won grand champion honors with TK ASM Bessy. She is a senior 2 year old daughter of Advancer Sleeping Milestone.

Jim stepped into the reserve spot with TK Trailblazer Rhonda, a three year old.

Their sister Jill kept the tradition going by showing Twix Beacon Manda to the junior champion spotlight. Manda is an intermediate yearling daughter of Valleystream Silver Beacon.

Rachel McGargle did break in and walk away with the reserve junior championship honors.

The Milking Shorthorn show also saw a family win the entire line-up of championship. The Goshorn family was the exhibitors of the quality animals.

Matthew won grand with Honey Creek R.J. Promise, an aged cow, while sister Monica followed with her senior 2 year old Pinesedge Cherry Sundae as reserve.

In the junior classes, Matthew once again captured the top honor with Honey Creek Duchy Mae, a senior calf. Monica won reserve with an intermediate yearling, Pinesedge Cheri Soda.

Although there was only one exhibitor in the Guernsey show, Todd Parsons showed quality cattle that could have stood the heat of competition.

Todd's senior two year old Walnut Lane Ka Aster was named grand champion. She is a daughter of Shadylawn King Arthur.

Winning junior champion and reserve grand was Parsons Farm Fayette Jackie, a senior calf. Todd's other senior calf was reserve junior champ.

In the Ayrshire show, Melvin Brant, Jr. took the top honor with Rippling-Brook Julius Betsy. She is a jr. 2 year old daughter of Pant Julius.

Julie Hall was showing a five year old that won reserve grand champion for her. The cow is Cle Mar Ary Show Garland.

Todd Parsons also made an appearance in the Ayrshire junior show and won junior champion with Honey-Brook Hi's Melissa, a senior calf.

Winning the reserve honor was Mischelle Broadbent. She was showing an intermediate yearling.

In first year showing and fitting competition Jody Goshorn won showmanship and Rachel McGargle won fitting.

Winning in the category for those with two to four years experience was Kathy Jo Wagner - showman and Christie Booher - fitter.

Five years and over experienced class was probably the toughest but John A. Foster III walked to the top of the showmanship competition while Russell Kyper cleaned up the fitting award.

Judges for the day included: Bernard Snider, Bedford, type judge in Ring 1; William Lesher, Burnville, fitting and showing judge in Ring 1; Steve Mowry, New Enterprise, type judge in Ring 2 and Tom Wakefield, fitting and showing judge in Ring 2.

COUDERSPORT (POTTER CO.) — The Potter County 4-H Qualifying Horse Show was held at the Potter County Fairgrounds. Judge was Harry Hurd.

Taking first place blue ribbons in the Horse Production classes was Jennifer Rathmell with a yearling colt and a two-year old fillie. In Grooming and Showmanship, 12 years and under, first place went to Michael Rutkowski from the Silver Bits Club. In the 13-15 year class, first place went to Darla Tormey. In the senior division first place went to Valery Barnett.

Nikki Perkins, Rainbow Mountain Trail Blazers, took first place in the Open Trail, 13.2 hands and under, while Rick Higley, Bronc Busters took first place in open trail over 13.2 hands with Mountain Fawn.

Chyrie Wheaton on Narada and Rick Higley on Mountain Fawn, both members of the Bronc Busters, teamed for first place in Pleasure Pairs.

Ehrlich gets the jump on fleas.

Fleas feed only on blood Prior to biting humans, they may have fed on skunks, rats or deer Fleas don t care

Adult fleas can go two years without a meal but prefer to eat often They usually bite humans on the legs but will jump onto beds and chairs if given a chance This can be more than just irritating Fleas are among the most notorious disease carriers in the world

Allowed to roam your home one female flea will lay about 450 eggs Get the jump on fleas before they jump on you Call Ehrlich for a free inspection no obligation before shipment--

• Dehorn and/or castrate animals — avoid the fly season, if possible.

• Acclimate animals to automatic waterers and feed bunks.

• Wean animals — early weaning is probably the most beneficial practice for reducing stress at sale time.

• Treat animals for grub, mange, and lice — in Pennsylvania, treatment should be completed before November.

Two to three weeks before shipment—

Immunity develops two to three weeks after the first vaccination. Calves should not be vaccinated before four months of age because the passive immunity derived from colostrum may interfere with active immunization during this period. Older. calves should be vaccinated against the following diseases two to three weeks before shipment.

• IBR — infectious bovine rhinotracheitis.

• PI_3— parainfluenza 3.

• Haemophilus somnus.

• Clostridial disease. (blackleg, malignant edema, and enterotoxemia — perfigens, type D — are the most important).

In addition to the above recommendations, you should consider including the following practices two to three weeks before shipment.

• Intestinal parasite treatment — fecal exam for parasite eggs is helpful in assessing this need.

• Ear implantation of growth promotant.

• Injection of vitamins A, D, E and selenium. (Se) — Pennsylvania soils and forages are known to be deficient in Se. Feed supplementation is recommended but may not be sufficient.

• Vaccination for leptospirosis, pasteurella, and BVD (bovine virus diarrhea) — BVD vaccination may temporarily weaken the immune system and should be done well in advance of sale. Your veterinarian can help you assess the need and timing of the vaccination for these diseases.

Postshipment Conditioning

Once calves arrive at their destination, they can be processed during unloading, but preferably several weeks later when they have adjusted to their new surroundings. The following procedures should be considered for either of these processing dates, except for vaccination with modified live virus vaccines such as nasogen and BVD, which should be done only at the later date:

• Animal identification — ear-tags are generally recommended for this purpose.

• Ear implantation of growth stimulant. (Not required if done preshipment).

• Grub, mange, and lice treatment-- grub control is recommended after the fly season but before November in cattle of Pennsylvania origin, and before October in cattle of southern origin. (Not required if done preshipment).

• Intestinal parasite treatment-- both worm and coccidia problems can be evaluated by fecal exam. (Not required if done preshipment).

• Injections of vitamins A, D, E, and selenium-- injections may not be needed, depending on the forage and supplements provided in the feeding program. (Not required if done preshipment).

• Vaccination

Intranasal IBR and PI_3.

Clostridial diseases. (blackleg, malignant edema, and enterotoxemia-- perfringens, type D -- are most important).

Haemophilus somnus.

Leptospirosis, BVD, and pasteurella (optional).

Note that these procedures are similar to the vaccination recommendations made for preconditioning, and could result in an immune boost and good protection within several days. However, if preconditioning was not done, then several weeks are required to develop the same immunity. Immune protection would not occur until after the time of greatest risk for shipping fever.

The cattle should be permitted to fill on good-quality hay immediately on arrival and then have access to unlimited water. This feeding practice reduces the chance of electrolyte deficiency, which occurs when thirsty animals fill up on water at the expense of hay intake.

In the event of a disease outbreak, certain procedures may be useful in assessing and managing the animals.

• Closely monitor the animals for the first ten days after arrival; this is a critical period. Look for animals with any of these disease symptoms: dirty, dry muzzle; ears tipped downward; persistent cough; dull eyes; abnormal manure; tucked-up posture; gaunt appearance; dehydration; tendency to stay away from the feed bunk. Rapid detection of symptoms is essential because immediate treatment is one of the most beneficial measures in reducing respiratory disease damage.

• Check the rectal temperatures of suspected diseased animals in the morning during hot weather. Temperatures higher than 140° F probably indicate a fever.

• Separate sick animals from the others for daily assessment and treatment for at least three to five days.

• Consult a veterinarian about selection of drugs, treatment schedule, and dosage, as well as about the progression of the disease.

• If large numbers of animals are becoming sick, use therapeutic levels of antibiotics in the feed or water. This procedure does not eliminate the need to separate and treat animals that show symptoms of illness.

There is a fine line between profit and loss for the cattle feeder in Pennsylvania. The difference between the two may well depend on the attention given to animal health. Such attention may influence not only death loss; but also the efficiency of converting feed to body weight, which may not involve obvious symptoms of disease. If a disease problem occurs, even the cost of a successful treatment program results in economic losses. To avoid such loss, the cattle feeder must prevent disease rather than treat it or hope for good health. The key to disease prevention is a management program of selected vaccinations and stress-reducing procedures focused on the high-risk periods.

Preconditioning and postconditioning recommendations are suggested, but these should be evaluated according to individual circumstances. A program of disease diagnosis, as outlined, as important in establishing the best preventive health program. In the long run, determining what your health problems are and taking the necessary precautions to minimize them pay off in the profit column.

Biotechnology For Insert Control

CHICAGO, IL — Although many breakthroughs in agricultural biotechnology have been reported by scientists recently, several more years of research will be required in most cases to develop products which farmers can use for crop or livestock production.

Biological insecticides, however, are among the few products of biotechnology currently available for use by farmers on a commercial basis.

According to Dr. Brian Melin, research entomologist with Abbott Laboratories, most biological insecticides in the marketplace today are made from the naturally occurring bacteria, Bacillus thuringiensis (Bt).

"Bt is one of the few natural pathogens presently available that can be cultivated and produced in quantities large enough for commercial use on major crops," Melin says. "It is particularly effective against crop-destroying caterpillars of the Lepidoptera order, which are major pests of crops such as corn, cotton, fruits and vegetables."

Dave Martin, director of marketing for the Agricultural Products Division of Abbott Laboratories, notes that a rapid growth in the demand for biological pesticides over the last three years is due to several factors.

"Biologists today are more effective and ecnomical than they've ever been due to improved product formulations and recent advances in fermentation and recovery technology," Martin says. "Equally important is the fact that these materials have shown no toxicity to people or animals, and they're not a threat to groundwater contamination.

"Environmental considerations are particularly significant in irrigated crop areas and where leaching or runoff of chemicals may cause problems," Martin adds. "The feedback we're receiving from farmers and their families shows that they want effective pesticides, but they also want the safest products available."

Abbott Laboratories is the world's largest producer of biological pesticides, including several Bt-based products used to control insects on over 200 agricultural crops in the U.S. and other countries. A $30 million expansion of the company's laboratory and fermentation facilities was recently completed to ensure production capacity will be sufficient to meet growing market demand for biologicals over the next several years.

has been used by progressive farmers for over 18 years. University tested and proven MOPRO Liquid Silage Fortifier is formulated to balance the major mineral and protein deficiencies of silages. It conserves dry matter by slowing down the heat of fermentation and also prevents loss from mold and rot after being removed from the silo or trench. MOPRO is added at the time of ensiling and is applied by metering equipment with very little handling cost. MOPRO will not corrode mild steel tanks or brass fittings and has no free ammonia odor to irritate the eyes or skin. MOPRO is a homogeneous solution of ammonia salts, urea, cane molasses, and minerals (except salt and calcium) in an efficient liquid carrier. It provides nitrogen for improved fermentation in the rumen and contains a mineral balance of phosphorus, magnesium, and trace elements including selenium. MOPRO 100 will give a resulting silage of up to 14.3% protein.
